LINDER INAUGURATES WORK ON NEW MARKET

County Doing Grading; Site To Be Ready by November 1.

Turning the first spadeful of dirt for the grading of the site, Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Linder inaugurated work on the new Atlanta Farmers' Market yesterday.

The commissioner launched the job as the county began grading of the block in which the market will be located, a site where once stood the Boys' High school. The block is bounded by Courtland street, Gilmer street, Piedmont avenue and Decatur street.

Commissioner Ed L. Almond, chairman of the county board of public works committee, also was on hand to see the start of the project. A number of tractors and other grading equipment, furnished by the county, will do the work. A large detail of convicts is providing the manpower.

"If Atlanta does its bit this will be the finest market in the south," Commissioner Linder said as the work got under way. "There is a good market here for all of the produce grown within a radius of 30 miles. If the people will patronize it they and the farmers will both profit. The housewives of Atlanta may rest assured that this place will be kept clean at all times."

In addition to the market master, who will be assigned to duty at the market, food inspectors of Linder's department will keep a close vigil on all food sold as well as to co-operate with the health departments of the city and state to see that sanitation prevails at all times, he said.

When the grading is completed the county will provide stone for paving a number of "flags" for stalls.

Commissioner Linder estimated that the market will be ready for business in 30 days, certainly not later than November 1.

"If we have continued good weather we may get started before that day," he said.

2 LAWYERS BARRED

Archer, McGinley Can Never Practice Again in State.

Two Atlanta lawyers were disbarred forever from practice in the state of Georgia yesterday by Judge John D. Humphries in Fulton superior court. They were Walter M. Archer and Robert McGinley, both of whom are under indictment on seven counts charging that they filed false damage claims against Atlanta companies.

The two lawyers consented to disbarment last night in proceedings which were held in Fulton superior court by Solicitor-General John A. Boykin yesterday. Paul Lindsay acted as their attorney.

Evidence that they attempted to defraud the Georgia Power Company, the Atlanta Gas Light Company, the Transco Company, the Southeastern Motor Lines, Inc., and the Southern Grocery Stores, Inc., was accumulated by Hugh Perryman, and other members of the solicitor-general's staff. Already three lawyers have been convicted in the false damage claim racket and four others are under indictment. Numerous persons, for whom the lawyers made the claims have also been indicted in the war of the solicitor to break up the racket.

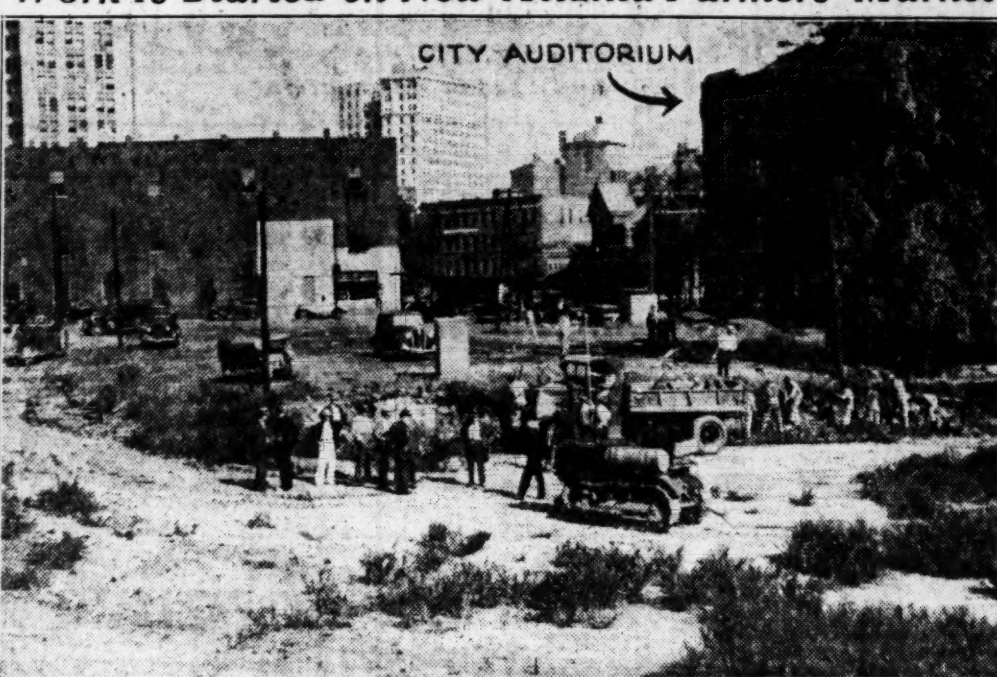

JOHN D. WILL REMAIN

IN NORTH FOR WHILE

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Sept. 13.—(AP) John D. Rockefeller, Jr.'s household believes, will stay at his summer home, Golf House, for nearly another month before departing for Ormond Beach, Fla.

The 96-year-old philanthropist is reported to be still in good health. He plays little golf, and this summer has confined his motoring to the estate.

Work Is Started on New Atlanta Farmers' Market

The site of the new Atlanta Farmers' Market at Courtland and Gilmer streets is shown above as it appeared yesterday when a detail of county convicts began grading it preparatory to the construction of a number of new buildings and stalls. The market will be ready for service not later than November 1.

STORM SURVIVORS TO ARRIVE TODAY

52 War Veterans First of Contingent Transferred to CCC.

Fifty-two veterans, survivors of the Florida hurricane, will arrive in Atlanta at 7:15 o'clock this morning. The veterans enroute from Camp Foster, near Jacksonville, Fla., last night, the Associated Press reported.

About 300 of them were placed in Camp Foster following their removal from the storm-swept keys. The 52 have been enrolled in the Civilian Conservation Corps and will detain at Fort McPherson, to be sent from there to CCC camps nearest their respective homes, after conditioning at the local camp.

Of the 300 at Camp Foster, which is expected to be cleared by Sunday, 150 will be sent to CCC duty, according to Henry Redkey, director of the Federal Transient Bureau in Jacksonville. Others are being placed in veterans' hospitals and others have been sent directly to their homes.

All were given physical examinations, he told the Associated Press, and only those found to be in good condition were accepted for CCC enrollment. At Fort McPherson last night it was announced the men would be put in charge of officers of District B of the Civilian Conservation Corps.

They will be rested and outfitted before being sent to camps near their homes. The men coming here are the first of the veterans surviving the hurricane to enter the corps.

HANDYMAN CONFESSES

SLAYING OVER WOMAN

EDGARTOWN, Mass., Sept. 13.—(AP) A mild-mannered, 35-year-old handyman admitted tonight, State Police Sergeant Joseph Fratus said, he killed Knight P. Owen in the third slaying on this island of Martha's Vineyard in 176 years.

Although Harold C. Look, island recluse who carved children's boats, refused to reveal his personal motive for killing Owen, Sergeant Fratus said it was because of his interest in behalf of Mrs. Lydia Hyde, 35, a widow mother of four children, a mutual acquaintance. Previously he had denied the woman was concerned.

Sergeant Fratus said Look asserted he did not think Owen, 42-year-old retired Boston broker and World War aviator, was "fit to associate" with the woman.

Police say Look shot Owen to death late yesterday at the conclusion of a brief but heated argument.

Russian Out of Prison Under Bond;

U. S. Seeks 'Permission' To Deport

Andrew Kapura was released from the federal penitentiary yesterday, after having been held for several months. He is being held on a $500 bond to return to the United States immigration officials here, who are anxious to deport him to his native Russia, and board a train for New York with the party.

shot that where he would be when the government wants him "is none of your damned business."

"He's a tough customer," said William A. Reilly, inspector-in-charge of the Department of Labor's immigration bureau in Atlanta. "He's just the type that should be deported, but it all rests with the Soviet government. If they grant us a passport for Kapura, we'll send him home to Russia. If they don't, we'll just have to put up with him in America."

"No matter in what country he spends the rest of his life, he'll be in jail. His type can't keep out of them."

The prison term that Kapura ended yesterday was his second. The first, several years ago, was for grand larceny. The second was for counterfeiting. He entered the pen March 9, 1934.

Kapura was turned over to immigration officials yesterday when he left the penitentiary. While he was making bond that will hold him under federal supervision until his country determines if Soviet Russia will accept him, he flourished a check that he had received for his labors in the duck pen at the pen.

"Cash this," he ordered. No one responded. He cursed fluently and he announced his determination to go out to the penitentiary and "raise hell" because they did not give him a return ticket home.

He bought his own ticket during the afternoon and is on his way to New York, where he admits he has a common law wife.

Kapura entered the United States in 1907 through Boston.

"We know where he will be if we want him," said Mr. Reilly.

FUNERAL RITES HELD

FOR J. P. McDONALD

Funeral services for J. P. McDonald, 82, of 114 West Taylor street, East Point, who suffered a cerebral hemorrhage Thursday afternoon while driving his car and who died Thursday at 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the chapel of Howard L. Carmichael with the Rev. J. R. Robbins officiating. Burial was in Hin Crest cemetery.

Mr. McDonald's car crashed into a telephone pole at Lee street and McCall's crossing when he lost control of it after his attack. His injuries in the accident were not serious, however.

BOOK GAME

1,800 in Cash Prizes for Book Titles!

By THE BOOK GAME EDITOR. Tonight, on the stroke of 12, the $1,800 Book Game will be brought to a conclusion. By that hour all sets must be in the hands of this department, or en route to the Constitution building, on the second floor of the Constitution building, Alabama and Forsyth streets, will remain open until midnight, where duplicates of any of the pictures of the series may be obtained promptly. These pictures cost 5 cents each, or 30 cents, 40 for $1.25, and the full set of 80 for $2.

Book Gamers who wish can find tables, pen and ink, pencils, paste, etc. here for their convenience, should they desire to add the finishing touches to their sets of answers.

It is impossible, of course, to state the exact date of the announcement of winners, but it seems probable that about two weeks will be required to carefully check and judge all the sets turned in. Just as soon as this work has been completed, the winner of the $1,000 and the other 34 generous cash prizes will be announced.

5-YEAR YOUTH SURVEY PLANNED FOR NATION

Education Council Creates Group for Study of Problems and Remedies.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Creation of a special commission to investigate present-day youth problems which "may constitute a fundamental threat to national welfare" was announced today by the American Council of Education.

It said an $800,000 private grant would finance the five-year inquiry and determine in detail the school system is out of joint with current social and economic conditions and prescribe remedies.

Dr. George F. Zook, president of the council, stressed the part youth plays in the present-day crisis and said that of all arrests reported to the Justice Department in 1934, 114,223, 87.5 per cent were under 25 years of age and 15.1 per cent under 20.

"There are now no social agencies equipped to provide adequate supervision and protection for these young people," Zook said.

The commission, composed of 14 leaders in social, literary, legal and educational fields, includes Newton D. Baker, secretary of war in the Wilson cabinet; Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago; John W. Studebaker, federal commissioner of education; Dorothy Canfield Fisher, author, and Will W. Alexander, of Atlanta, former clerkman and leader in the field of race relations, and Mrs. Edith R. Stern, of New Orleans, civic and educational leader. It will hold its first meeting Monday.

Dr. Zook, a former commissioner of education, said that although full details of the commission's work had not been mapped, it would embark on a four-fold undertaking:

1. A comprehensive analysis of the characteristics of youth, and an evaluation of the influences to which they are subjected.

2. The continuous study of commonly accepted goals in the care and education of American youth, for the purpose of determining the adequacy of these goals in relation to present social, economic and political trends.

3. The investigation of agencies concerned with the youth problem, and the eventual recommendation of procedures which seem to influence young people most effectively.

4. The systematic popularization and promotion of desirable plans of action through conferences, publications and demonstrations of promising procedures.

He added that the group will select a full-time director at its first meeting who will procure assistants to carry out an immediate study of all agencies already engaged in the guidance of youth.

OLD AGE PENSION PLANS CALLED FOR

Social Security Board Prepares To Ask Appropriation; 13 States Ineligible.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(AP)—The new social security board called upon the 35 states with old-age pension laws today to file their administrative plans for approval if they expected aid.

Between now and January 1, the board must make up its budget for the first quarter of the 1936 calendar year and file with the treasury a request for funds. Board officials said they expected to receive an appropriation soon after congress meets.

Thirteen states will not be eligible to receive federal aid for pensions unless they pass laws during the next few months. They were listed as Alabama, Georgia, Kansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia.

Whether all of the others will receive federal aid depends upon how completely their laws meet the requirements laid down in the federal law. Many of these states will have to change their statutes to meet these requirements.

States were told that their needs for federal funds to care for dependent children and the blind should be sent in before January 1.

WALLACE SILENT ON WEED PROTEST

Ehringhaus Receives No Reply to Warning on Dangers.

RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Governor Ehringhaus said today he had received no reply from his appeal to Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace to take steps to secure better prices for tobacco.

The Governor wired Wallace last night, following a mass meeting of tobacco farmers here yesterday, declaring prices were far below the price of 21 cents and unless something was done to boost the prices the tobacco program was in jeopardy.

Prices have not increased since Thursday a committee was instructed by the farmers to call a state-wide mass meeting of growers.

DOG TRACK MAN SLAIN; POLICE KILL SLAYER

HOUSTON, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Harry Schwartz, 34, greyhound race track follower, and C. J. Wright, 35, were slain tonight at a hotel here.

Schwartz was shot down in his sixth floor apartment in the downtown hotel. His assailant, Wright, was fatally wounded a few minutes later in a gun duel with City Detective J. G. Lewis, who announced him in the crowded hotel lobby.

Wright, firing and retreating to the sidewalk, crumpled upon the pavement with a bullet wound in his abdomen. Both he and Schwartz died within a half hour.

Witnesses said Wright shot at Carl Davis, greaser, whom he chased from the eleventh to the sixth floor of the hotel, but Davis was not wounded.

DESCENDANTS OF FOES AT ANTIETAM TO MEET

SHARPSBURG, Md., Sept. 13.—(AP)—A grandson and a son of the Confederate and Union commanders who fought at the battle of Antietam have been invited here September 17 for a dinner marking the 73d anniversary of the contest.

Dr. George Redding Lee, of New York, grandson of General Robert E. Lee, Confederate commander-in-chief, is expected to motor here from his summer home at Falmouth, Va.

The committee in charge also has invited George B. McClellan Jr., of New York, son of General George B. McClellan, commander of the Federal army in the battle.

BETHANY CHURCH TO BE DEDICATED

Ceremonies in Grove Park Tomorrow To Be Attended by Bishop.

Bishop W. N. Ainsworth will dedicate the new building of the Bethany Methodist church, of Grove Park, tomorrow, it was announced yesterday by Rev. J. D. Swagerty, pastor.

The mortgage for the church was signed by Dr. R. L. Russell, presiding elder of the Atlanta district, will preach at the morning service. Dinner will be served on the lawn of the church at 12:30. The church was begun in 1915 and completed in 1934.

Former pastors of the church are John H. Swagerty, pastor, and V. L. Bray, A. A. Tiley, S. A. F. Wagner and Sewell Dixon. Mr. Swagerty has been pastor since November, 1932.

Rotarians have prepared to show their best southern hospitality, including visits in the homes of several Atlanta residents, sight-seeing tours to all nearby points of interest and a baseball game with the Atlanta baseball team and the Georgia Tech football team in action.

The Englishmen are Dennis Davis, of Wrentham, Middlesex; John Arthur Ford, of Exeter, Devon; Victor Terrace, Walsall; Thomas Dixon Green, of Harewood, Skipton, and Richard Arthur Miles, of Milnthorpe, Westmorland. They landed Sunday from the S. S. Floridian at Savannah and have been entertained by the Savannah, Augusta and Athens clubs.

They will be entertained in the homes of Rotarians Frank Sprattling, W. E. Mitchell, E. A. Kalkbush and C. A. Rauschenberg Jr. and will be entertained by the Savannah, South Carolina, and Tennessee, Texas and Virginia.

H. C. Frazer, of the Federal Reserve Bank of Havana, Cuba, will speak at "Amateur Radio Broadcasters' Day" and George Winslow will deliver an address in connection with observance of Constitution Day. American flags will be presented to the visitors by Bunyan Stevens, of Rome, district governor of Georgia Rotary.

Howard Candler was appointed by President Ralph Paris to make arrangements for entertaining the young men. They will be here until Thursday morning, when they will be driven to Newnan by members of the Atlanta club.

ENGLISH ROTARIANS TO VISIT ATLANTA

Four Young Men To Spend 5 Days as Guests of Atlanta Club.

Four youthful English Rotarians will motor here from Athens tomorrow to pay a five-day visit to the Atlanta Rotary Club.

On a good-will tour through America in connection with the international program of Rotary, the young Englishmen already have expressed themselves as being impressed with the "general freeness" and "openness" of Georgians, it was said.

UNEMPLOYED RIOTERS DISPERSED BY POLICE

Minneapolis Jobless Move on City Hall Demanding Increase in Allowances.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Clouds of tear gas, poured from armored police cars, today dispersed a milling crowd of unemployed in the latest flareup of labor trouble which brought death to two persons and injuries to 30 others here this week.

One man, Victor O. Leeds, music teacher for the relief administration, was treated for gas bomb burns at General hospital.

The police onset came when some 500 demonstrators, demanding a 35 per cent increase in relief allowances, moved on the city hall after two hours of parading.

Policemen on foot moved against the crowd which had attracted several thousand spectators and ordered the demonstrators to disperse.

"Don't move—stick with me," yelled Sam Davis, who was haranguing the crowd.

As the police advanced, the armored cars moved simultaneously, firing bursts of tear gas into the throng.

For a time the demonstrators stood fast, gradually the clouds of gas became too much for them and a slow retreat, which quickly developed into a rout, ensued.

REPUBLICAN COUNSEL RAPS ADMINISTRATION

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Sept. 13.—(AP)—An attack upon the Roosevelt administration was voiced tonight by John Hamilton, general committee, at a party mass meeting here.

The meeting followed a conference of the state republican executive committee and a gathering of the young republicans organization here earlier in the afternoon.

LAVAL ANGRERS ITALY BY LEAGUE SUPPORT

provoke Mussolini to decisive action—possibly resignation from the League.

Another spokesman declared Italy would pursue her Ethiopian plans in complete disregard of Laval's declarations.

Officials studied the text of Premier Laval's strong words to the League assembled at Geneva. There was unqualified consternation at the purport of first extracts received in Rome.

Final decision, of course, rests with Ducloux. Yesterday he was reported planning a sharp retort to Sir Samuel Hoare's expression of the British stand. Now that he unexpectedly faces the hostility of Britain and France, dominant League powers, there is consternation as to whether he will make the anticipated international broadcast or press statement.

Diplomats believe the answer lies in Mussolini's character—that he will go ahead with this east African campaign as he has threatened "with the League, without it or against it."

The press was less bellicose, however, possibly indicating there still is a chance of avoiding war by a "deal."

Italy will "answer" Mediterranean massing.

ROME, Sept. 13.—Italy announced tonight she would go straight ahead with her plans in east Africa and at the same time a semi-official newspaper said the country would take "measures" to prevent a British concentration of a fleet in the Mediterranean.

The semi-official Colonial Action said Italy is being told "in a state of alarm" in the Mediterranean by Britain's fleet concentration and would take measures in answer.

"Every new arrival of a British naval unit in our sea cannot but give rise to other measures on our part," the paper stated.

"Much more serious must be our answer if she intends to transport her home fleet near our shores. In fact, the answer will be given even before it arrives."

ENGLAND PREPARES FOR JOINT SEA OPERATIONS

LONDON, Sept. 13.—(UP)—Great Britain is assembling a formidable fleet of fighting ships, larger and more powerful than previous reports have indicated, near the entrance to the Suez canal, it was learned today.

All the way from England to Haifa, northeastward of the canal, war ships of all sizes are steaming through the Mediterranean. There is an occasional troop ship, and little groups of airplanes and flying boats are reported sporadically flying over southern Europe.

Gibraltar and Malta are taking more reinforcements, but Alexandria, 147 miles west of Suez, is becoming the base for a compact, efficient fleet that is ready for any development.

United Press dispatches indicate the League of Nations voted for penalties against Italy in event of an attack on Ethiopia, Britain may be ready to blockade the Suez canal, but the straits of Gibraltar.

Question of Penalties.

It is emphasized in authoritative quarters Britain is seeking peace, not war, and the specific nature of any penalties which might be levied has not been discussed officially.

But it is understood if the situation arises, there will be two questions—1, joint penalties; 2, delegation by the League of Nations to individual nations of authority to enforce League penalties.

In this connection, reliable French sources at Geneva told the United Press yesterday for three days British and French leaders at the League meetings have been discussing British-French naval co-operation in event of penal action.

The British were reported to be seeking clarification of the possible extent of French collaboration in event of an emergency, provided the British Mediterranean fleet were reinforced. It was rumored the British would take care of the eastern Mediterranean, and France would patrol the North sea. France would patrol the North sea, and Britain would take care of the western Mediterranean, but not where there might be a clash with Italian ships, and Britain would take care of the Gibraltar-Malta-Suez "allied route" to India and the far east.

But while talk of penalties and co-operation goes on, Britain is making ready in advance for an emergency.

SUEZ CANAL COMPANY SEEKS ADVICE IN CLOSING

PARIS, Sept. 13.—(UP)—The Suez canal company, which has headquarters in Paris, today consulted legal experts as to whether Egypt, Great Britain or the League of Nations could close the canal legally.

The action was prompted by report the jurist Bandoul Pacha has reported to the Egyptian government Egypt would be justified in closing the canal to "outlaw war."

The canal already has earned approximately $200,000 from Italian troop transports to the east, and it is equally true that the troops are returning to Italy, pays the canal 10 gold francs and payment must be spot cash.

EUROPE FORMS FRONT AGAINST DUCLUX'S PLANS

after Laval's speech, Laval motored to Auvergne, France, for the week end.

Experts of the "big five" nations represented on a council subcommittee attempting to settle the dispute—Britain, France, Spain, Poland and Turkey—worked hard today in fashioning a proposed solution which either will be sent direct to Italy and Ethiopia or given to the council.

Maxim Litvinoff, soviet commissar for foreign affairs, and President Eamon De Valera, of the Irish Free State, are to speak tomorrow to the league assembly. Both are expected to make statements strongly supporting the League.

Conversations, it was understood, already have taken place between the powers upon specific measures which might be taken in the Mediterranean and other strategic points in case conciliation fails.

Warmly Applauded.

Widespread applause was given Laval when he told the delegates France will continue close co-operation with Great Britain and said their friendship is "unalterable."

The covenant continues as our international law," said Laval, "and politics are based on the League."

He expressed hope of conciliation, asserting "the task is most difficult, but I persist in my hope of a solution which will satisfy the legitimate aspirations of Italy and guard the sovereign rights of the other nations."

"We are all bound by solidarity. Our obligations are written in the covenant. France will not seek to avoid these obligations."

After the speech Laval walked from the hall with the chief Italian delegate, Baron Pompeo Aloisi.

A warning that in case of an Italian-Ethiopian war "Africa will arise" was given by Laval to the chief Italian delegate, Baron Pompeo Aloisi.

"Let it never be forgotten—the long memory and deep Africa never forgets and never forgives injury and injustice," he said.

FRENCH SEE "WARNING" IN LAVAI'S WORDS.

PARIS, Sept. 13.—France saw tonight in the words of her premier a "last warning" to Mussolini that she will apply economic and financial sanctions if Italy attacks Ethiopia.

That was the interpretation by French officials of Premier Pierre Laval's remarks upon his return to Paris after his speech at Geneva.

They said the Geneva address of Laval marked the end of the new period of armed strength and stiff diplomatic principles to meet a "serious situation," and they saw a firm determination to stamp out the war.

France, these officials insisted, never has contemplated military sanctions. In fact, they contended that any possible economic and financial sanctions might take the procedure involved was "unknown—because it never has been attempted."

However, they suggested, however, that any sanctions might begin with a stiff embargo against the exportation of war materials of any classification.

LONDON CONSIDERS LAVAI AMBIGUOUS.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—(UP)—The Geneva speech of France's Premier Laval was received with varying degrees of enthusiasm, misgiving and actual doubt here tonight. But all sources agreed upon one thing: There is no sign that the East African war will live up to their full obligations under the League of Nations.

In most authoritative quarters, observers declared Laval's intentions toward Ethiopia are most definitely in the line of a bluff. They said the French will live up to their full obligations under the League of Nations.

However, this view was not accepted in some diplomatic circles, where the opinion was expressed the French intention was a bluff and actual doubt here tonight. But all sources agreed upon one thing: There is no sign that the East African war will live up to their full obligations under the League of Nations.

ROAST ON GAS STOVE BRINGS FIRE ENGINES

When the Rev. L. A. Davis got home last night he found the Friday the 13th jinx had played havoc with what would have been a fine roast.

Passersby saw smoke rolling from the house at 720 Pryor street, S. W., about 9:45 o'clock last night. They summoned the fire department and a truck and two pumps screamed up on time to put water on the fire.

The firemen turned out the gas and left a note of regret over the fate of the roast. Nobody was home.

Death Threat Is Sent To Governor of Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 13.—(UP)—Governor Davey received an anonymous letter today, recalling the assassination of Senator Huey Long and threatening the Governor's life.

The crudely-written letter read: "Governor Davey: 'You C what Long got? Well you are booked for the same dose. Warn you to draw in your horns. You rode us far as you could. You marked and you mark no more. Don't think this is a joke.'"

Governor Davey previously had received several other threatening letters. Although he expressed the belief all were written by cranks, he is accompanied by armed highway patrolmen in all his journeys over the state.

The letter received today, postmarked Columbus, was given to postal authorities.

Text of Laval Address at Geneva On Italian-Ethiopian Situation

GENEVA, Sept. 13.—(UP)—The text of Premier Laval's address to the League of Nations assembly today follows:

In a discussion so grave as this, where everybody must assume his responsibility, it is my duty to make heard the voice of my country.

I explained the French position before the council of the League of Nations. I have done this, I believe, with clearness.

France is faithful to the League covenant. She cannot fail in her obligations.

The League of Nations was born from the sufferings of men and she was erected upon ruins, conceived in order to prevent a return of war.

The adherence without reservation which we have brought to the League, has been enthusiastic, and the result of our confidence is a glorious victory for peace.

We nourish no ill against any people. We wish for peace for all by the collaboration of all.

It is not without emotion after having signed the accords at Rome that I evoke today the difference which weighs so heavily upon our assembly.

On January 7 last, Mussolini and I, not only in the interests of our two countries but also for the peace of Europe, defied the world and things which might be able to divide us.

Measuring all the value of Franco-Italian friendship, I said to the world: "I am ready to sacrifice my country to the new policy happily inaugurated between France and Italy."

At Stresa, with delegates of the British government, we found the chief of the Italian government animated with the same desire and the same determination to preserve the peace of the world.

I know he is ready to preserve this collaboration.

That explains sufficiently the price which I am ready to pay to maintain such solidarity in the very interests of the European community and in the interests of general peace.

AT CONCILIATION.

I have spared no effort at conciliation.

In the supreme effort made by the League council, I shall have the satisfaction of fulfilling simultaneously my duty as a member of the League of Nations and the duty which is dictated by friendship.

I conserve hope that the council will be able within a short space of time to succeed in its role of conciliation without resort to force.

Doubtless this task is a rude one but I persist in believing it is not hopeless.

The committee of five was studying every proposition which is of a nature to satisfy the legitimate aspirations of Italy in a measure compatible with the respect for the sovereignty of another state which is a member of the League.

Let all realize there exists no discrepancy between France and Britain in their efforts seeking for this peaceful solution.

We have had during this year difficulties which seemed insurmountable.

Yet they were settled, and because the question of the Saar, and the difference between Hungary and Yugoslavia were European problems, must one deduce that because of that they were more easy to solve?

We have succeeded, yesterday, in settling the Saar, and in settling the Yugoslav problem.

In this event the new situation more poignant still for all of us, will demand our examination.

Let us realize that by a solidarity which fixes our duty. Our obligations are inscribed in the covenant. France will not evade those obligations.

Red Light, Friday, 13th, Auto, Grady, Broken Legs

Crossing on red light is always bad, but it proved particularly bad for Thomas Little, negro, of 453 Fraser street, on Friday the 13th.

He was taken to Grady hospital, police reports said, with both legs broken after he had crossed behind a street car and behind the Grady monument at Forsyth and Marietta streets while the light was red.

A car driven by L. G. Garton, of 390 E. Commercial street, struck him, but missed his two companions.

eral good of the state. I will be glad to do my part, but as yet the whole thing is unsettled.

"I think that concessions should be made by both the federal government and the state administration in an effort to bring about harmony within the state. I think the more should be a humanitarian one and policies should be left out of it entirely."

Maloney said it was too early to discuss details and that he had not as yet been selected as an emissary to Washington.

"I do not desire to inject myself into such a matter and would only attempt to bring about peace if urged to do so by both sides," Maloney added.

Long in the last months before he died had acted passed designed to regulate federal work relief expenditures in Louisiana, and the federal government has been investigating income tax returns of his followers.

Little immediate response was forthcoming from Washington on the reported plans of Long leaders to seek an end to their difficulties with the national administration.

Postmaster-General Farley, object of numerous verbal attacks from Long, declined to comment. The Treasury Department indicated any investigations the federal government may be conducting in connection with Long's income tax returns will go ahead despite his death.

While politics claimed the major interest, an announcement was made that the longest into the slaying will be resumed Monday with eyewitnesses and Long's bodyguards expected to be called.

Mrs. Carl A. Weiss Jr., widow of the 30-year-old Baton Rouge eye specialist who shot Long and who was in turn killed by Long's bodyguards, denied in Opelousas that her husband was involved in a plot in which conspirators drew straws to select the killer of Long.

Repeat of Laws Sought.

One drive of the anti-Longists is to be directed at tearing down the immense structure of statutory power and authority Long reared to cement and buttress his political empire.

To accomplish this, activists will seek repeal by the legislature of the acts Long jammed through in a raft of special sessions.

Long at the hour of his death, held the legislature in absolute subjection. With Long removed from the scene, the oppositionists have a chance to get into and perhaps emerge victoriously from a scramble for majority in both houses of the assembly.

With the all-important quadrennial state primary elections and congressional nominations to be held in October, falling on the same day, naturally the opposition is mustering all its power for a tremendous "make-up" offensive.

They hope to sweep a majority into both legislative chambers along with a governor, and repeal of Long's laws which they do not like would follow as a matter of course.

Speedy Repeal Sought.

The question is, whether they can accomplish repeal before the January balloting. It will help them tremendously if they can because many of Long's acts affected the election laws, provided for state administration selection of polling booth commissioners, hiring of election day guards, and placing the employment of every public worker even in towns and municipalities under state administration control.

The repeal demand was voiced by Charles P. Manship, publisher of the Baton Rouge State-Times and Morning Advocate, an outstanding foe of Long's organization and practices.

Following for a long time, Manship declared editorially:

"The dictatorial laws that have made conditions intolerable in Louisiana should be repealed."

Manship painted a bright picture for Louisiana if "peace" follows.

"There can be no contentment in Louisiana until the government is given back to the people," the publisher said.

He appealed particularly for repeal of the Long law providing for selection of polling booth commissioners by state administration followers.

Definite Facts.

Out of the political chaos from Long's death, definite facts arose. Summarized, they were:

1. Long's lieutenants professed solidarity "for the good of the organization."

2. Wade O. Martin, Louisiana public service commission chairman, said he would accept Governor O. K. Allen's appointment if made—to the United States senate for Long's unexpired term if it were the state administration, regardless of his own wishes.

3. An administration caucus will be held next week to decide in council of war manner how the organization is going to be run. It will follow up several informal group conferences that have already been held.

4. Oppositionists are in a strategic position because many in Long's ranks were forced into line by mandatory political necessity, and those not absolutely tied up may jump back on the anti side of the fence.

Additional first-hand information about the assassination of Long and the killing of Dr. Weiss by Long's bodyguards in the state house Sunday night is expected to be obtained when the inquest, three times postponed, is reopened Monday.

WEISS WIDOW RETURNS TO HOME OF HER FATHER.

Opelousas, La., Sept. 13.—(AP) Back in her home in the charming country seeking peaceful seclusion for herself and her infant son, Mrs. Carl Austin Weiss, pretty widow of the physician who was killed in assisting Senator Huey P. Long, today denied indignantly her husband had been a party to a plot to murder the political dictator.

"Dr. Weiss could not have entered into a plot to slay the senator," the tall, slender widow declared. "He was a type of beauty, flashing resentment at charges by Long's leaders the assassination was plotted by his political enemies."

She cried softly as she spoke of the tragedy that smashed her happiness and left her three-month-old son fatherless. Her paleness was accentuated by the jet black hair that rimmed her features.

Huey Long--Political Storm-Center

His Rise to Governorship and Senate Had Comic Opera Air

This is the second in a series of four daily articles on Huey P. Long. (By The Associated Press)

In 1918 Huey Long put his foot on the first rung of a political ladder that took him ultimately to the dictatorship of Louisiana.

He had stayed home from the World War on the grounds that he was a married man and a notary public. Later he said he didn't go to war because he wasn't mad at anybody.

His first political job was railroad commissioner for the northern Louisiana district. He became its chairman in 1921. He was 28, quick-witted and ambitious.

One day he was talking with a reporter when his position was announced as a deputation from the farm country waiting to see him. Huey ran his hand along a dusty window sill, cupped his hair, pulled his necktie askew.

"I'm makin' up for the yoke," he said.

In 1924 the 30-year-old political "comer" ran for the democratic gubernatorial nomination, and although his showing was good in the rural districts, he was snowed under in New Orleans.

Elected Governor in 1928.

Political opponents tried to blast Huey from his position on the public service commission, but succeeded only in taking away his chairmanship. Meanwhile, tirelessly, he was building and extending his political fences.

In 1928 he was elected governor, after a spirited three-way fight for the democratic nomination in which he shifted his allegiance to take advantage of the split field.

The legislature was predominantly anti-Long and after 11 months of political maneuvering the "kindly" faced impeachment charges growing out of his refusal to commute death sentences of a man and woman convicted of murder. He crushed the move, planted himself more firmly in the saddle and continued his program.

turned to the home of her father, Judge B. H. Pavy, of Evangeline parish in the heart of the Acadian country, until his death.

Longfellow. The future was uncertain.

Before her marriage to Dr. Weiss two years ago, she had been a teacher in the high school at St. Martinville. In 1931 she had gone to Paris with a group of other girls as representatives of the Acadian country at the French Colonial Exposition and stayed there for 18 months on a scholarship awarded by the French government for study at Sorbonne University. She is a graduate of Newcomb College, in New Orleans.

Happiest and Saddest.

"Sunday was one of the happiest days of our lives, and Sunday night was the saddest," the young widow, in her early twenties, said today in discussing her husband's fatal encounter with Senator Long.

The family had gone on a picnic after attending early morning mass at Baton Rouge. On the return, Dr. Weiss, she said, ate a hearty supper and helped to tuck the baby in its bed before leaving his home for the last time.

She couldn't assign any motive for her husband's act in striking down the senator. He had no deep interest in politics.

"His actions Sunday," she said, "were too normal and happy to have been the actions of a man premeditating an assassination. From the time he left home at 9 o'clock (Sunday night), until the shooting occurred about 9:20 o'clock was only a few minutes, and there could not have been time for such a thing."

"Furthermore, had there been a plot, Dr. Weiss would have carried a better weapon. The pistol he used was a small, off-brand type that was not in good condition."

Members of both her family and Dr. Weiss' family declared there was no connection between the killing of Long and the latter's proposed bill to transfer Judge Pavy from this district to another.

CAPITAL UNRESPONSIVE TO PEACE OVERTURE.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(AP) Reported plans of lieutenants of Huey P. Long in Louisiana to seek to smooth out difficulties with the national administration brought little immediate response today in the capital.

Postmaster-General Farley, target for many of the late senator's verbal attacks, refused to comment.

From the treasury department came word any investigations the federal government may have under way in the matter of Long's income tax returns will be continued, despite his death.

Treasury officials would not openly discuss the matter. They recalled the department had never admitted it was conducting such a probe, the senator himself having made the assertion on numerous occasions on the floor of the senate that such an investigation was under way.

GIRL, 19, FAILS TO DIE IN TRIPLE-HAZARD LEAP.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(AP) Grace Vollmer, 19, failed to find death in a triple-hazard leap today.

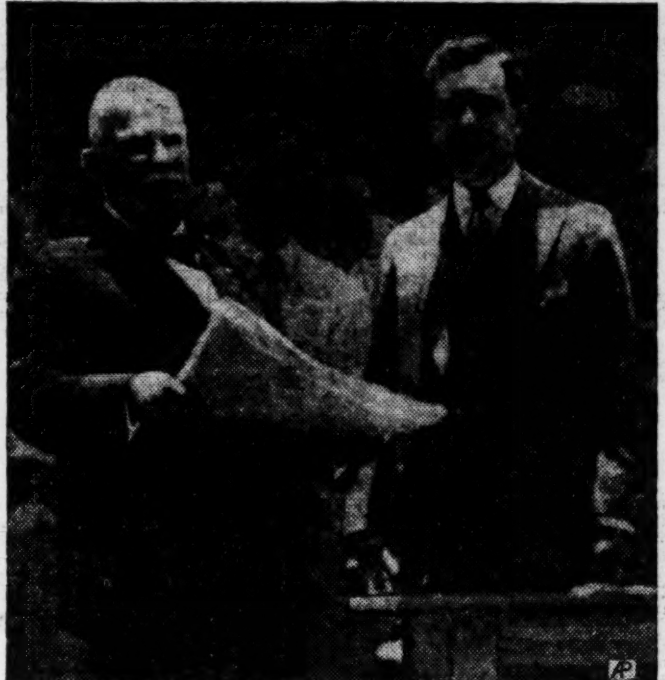

She jumped from a Bronx viaduct and barely missed striking high tension wires which might have shocked her to death.

She landed on the tracks 35 feet below but was not killed.

The motorman of an approaching train stopped just before the forward trucks were about to pass over her. She was taken to a hospital suffering from contusions and possible internal injuries.

GIBRALTAR OFFICIALS ARREST TWO ITALIANS.

GIBRALTAR, Sept. 13.—(AP) Two Italians were arrested today and held without bail on charges of not having necessary permits. Search of the two men's pockets revealed documents in their possession which were regarded as suspicious by the authorities. The men said they were Alfredo Rabaglietti and Giorgio Bedin.

When Huey Pierce Long was inaugurated as Governor of Louisiana at Baton Rouge in 1928, this picture was taken. He was 34 years old.

to provide free school books, help country schools, build better roads, shift the tax burden and "soak the rich."

There was a new state capitol and a new executive mansion.

Comic Opera Atmosphere.

There was much of the comic opera atmosphere in Long's shrewd, blatant, profane manipulations of the political wheels. On one occasion he told his legislative leaders to pass all the bills they had on hand and he'd veto the ones he didn't like. It was his way of clearing the calendar.

The newspapers fought Long, so he became a pamphleteer and finally, in 1929, started his own weekly newspaper, the American Progress.

When Huey was elected to the United States senate in 1930, after a campaign in which he employed a "sound truck" to harangue the voters, he decided to give up his governorship until he had a successor who suited him.

Off to Washington.

His senate seat remained vacant 10 months until January, 1932, when he engineered his friend O. K. Allen through the primaries and made certain the state of Louisiana was still in what he considered proper hands. Oscar Allen has lent Huey the money to finish his first political campaign and the two had been constant political friends.

W. O. Oscar in the state house, Huey packed his grips and went to Washington. And it was not long before the dignified senate discovered there was a Huey Long in town.

Tomorrow—Huey Long in Washington.

CANAL PROGRESS.

Florida Work Will Start Today 'Even'.

OCALA, Fla., Sept. 13.—(AP)—A promise to begin work on clearing the cross-state canal right of way tomorrow will be fulfilled, said Lieutenant Colonel Somerville, construction chief, even if it is no more than to cut down a tree or two.

Together 1,365 men were on the job today.

The first company proceeded this afternoon to a point about seven miles south of Ocala, where the digging will begin. About 100 strong, the detachment will dig up canal right of way and be ready for work Monday.

After a week's work, Camp Roosevelt showed three developments:

1. Three trenches completed: a 10-car railroad siding laid; a temporary camp for 200 to 300 pitched; one engineering building completed; a score of small buildings for roads laid; and foundations completed for a dozen homes and a dozen administration buildings.

MRS. KATE C. MITCHELL SUCCEDED YESTERDAY.

Mrs. Kate Carter Mitchell, a resident of Atlanta for more than 50 years and a member of prominent Atlanta and Columbus (Ga.) families, died yesterday at the residence, 1410 Peachtree street, at the age of 78.

Born in Columbus in 1857, she was a daughter of the late Samuel McDonald Carter and the former Miss Emily Conitt, pioneer Georgia families. She was the wife of the late Robert E. Mitchell, prominent Atlantan.

Surviving are a son, Robert Emmett Mitchell, an official of the Southern Bell Telephone Company; two sisters-in-law, Mrs. W. Colquitt Carter and Mrs. Lillian W. Carter, of Dallas; four sons, Mr. Samuel B. Mitchell, Mrs. M. Gray Zalkins, Mrs. J. C. Mahen, of New York city, and Mrs. J. B. Horne, and a brother, Samuel Mitchell, of New York city. Funeral arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

SHIP RADIO OPERATORS RECEIVE HIKE IN PAY.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(AP)—The Radio Telegraphists Association and the Black Diamond Steamship Line today reached an agreement in the union's demands for increased pay for ship radio operators.

The agreement, signed by both parties, will raise the pay for operators on the Black Diamond line from $80 to $115 a month.

AMERICA, COLOMBIA SIGN NEW TRADE PACT.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(AP)—The State Department today announced conclusion of an unconditional, most-favored-nation trade agreement with Colombia, the fourth reciprocal tariff pact to be written.

Details were withheld until the accord could be published simultaneously with the French-French trade agreement. It was understood to be similar to the recently concluded Brazilian trade agreement.

"13 Club" Members Defy Friday's Superstitions.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Thirteen charter members of the Anti-Superstition Club lit three cigarettes on a match today, broke the clubhouse mirror and walked on to the Arrowhead golf course with 13 caddies and 13 black cats. This superstition business," Nathaniel Leverone, club president, said, walking under the ladder.

"Not one of us carries a rabbit's foot. We all walk under ladders and we spill all the salt we want to at the breakfast table. In fact, I spilled a lot of it on purpose this morning."

Whistling "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf," he advanced to the first hole.

He swung. The ball soared 200 yards down the fairway.

"The thing is, a lot of people are still living in the dark ages," he continued. "We're going to show them that it's all wrong."

He walked unconcernedly under a ladder at the second hole and smiled at the black cat which crossed his path.

"We're expecting a little trouble this year, though. I heard people are peevish at us because the caddies stole their black cats. But if something does go wrong, it'll be the first bad luck we've had."

The club, with 13 original members, was organized three years ago.

NAZI MOTHERS LAUDED BY HITLER IN ADDRESS

Reichsfuehrer Tells Women Bearing Children Is High Title of Nobility.

NUREMBERG, Sept. 13.—(UP)—Wildly cheered by 20,000 Nazi women, Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler asserted tonight the "highest title of nobility" a woman can attain is "mother."

Hitler, expounding a theory of the difference between the character of men and women, shouted denial of charges that women are degraded in the Nazi state and required only to bear children.

"I cannot believe a woman is degraded if she becomes a mother," the Reichsfuehrer exclaimed. "I believe that is the highest title of nobility she can attain."

Earlier, addressing 150,000 political functionaries at the Zeppelinfeld, Hitler asserted: "The popular army (based on universal conscription) is not to wage aggressive war but to protect the nation so Germany can never again make such a bad mistake as the one she had to endure for 16 years."

Joseph Goebbels, Reichminister of public enlightenment, today charged that the Soviet Union's peace policy and anti-religious activity were the causes of Germany's drive against Jews, because bolshevism in reality is a Jewish international.

Goebbels, addressing the annual Nazi party rally, ridiculed the Soviet government and reiterated his belief in the necessity of a communist outrage against civilization. He repeated lengthy charges against high Soviet officials.

More than 3,000 delegates of foreign Nazi organizations today took an oath of allegiance to Hitler in swastika declaration to the Reichsfuehrer, which included details of the new "race law" making Jews second-class citizens and an earnest appeal for people to defend against the dangers of world bolshevism.

It is understood the government's declaration to the Reichsfuehrer, which included details of the new "race law" making Jews second-class citizens and an earnest appeal for people to defend against the dangers of world bolshevism.

Ryburn Johnson, president of the Fulton National bank, entertained the directors of the Federal Reserve bank of the sixth district at his country home, Shack No. 9, on the Chattahoochee river, yesterday.

Several Atlanta friends were present and the party was entertained with a barbecue. Among the others present were Fitzgerald Hall, president of the N. C. & St. L. railroad, a member of the Federal Reserve board.

Representatives of each of the Atlanta banks attended the barbecue and the occasion was in every way a delightful one.

The Clay home is situated on the banks of the Chattahoochee river. Those who attended this barbecue were unanimous in their praise of the hospitality of their host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Clay.

MILLION AND HALF FOR CCC CAMP SHOES.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Four shoe concerns were awarded contracts today for $1,142,170.50 of shoes for the Civilian Conservation Corps. The contracts went to: The Chipmunk Shoe Manufacturing Company, Chipmunk Falls, N.Y., 20,000 pairs for $21,200; R. P. Hazard Company, Gardiner, Maine, 35,000 pairs, $37,800; Joseph M. Herman Shoe Company, Boston, 150,000 pairs for $371,850; and 32,000 pairs for $35,650; Endicott Johnson Corporation, Endicott, N. Y., 201,900 pairs for $307,775.50, and 122,400 pairs for $307,808.

This brought to 1,225,000 pairs the total number of shoes that have been used by the corps since its inception, or $8,020,500 worth of shoe leather they have worn this.

FRENCH CELEBRATE PERSHING'S BIRTH.

War Veterans Plant Oak Trees in Villages in Honor of U. S. General.

PARIS, Sept. 13.—(AP)—French towns which were liberated by the American expeditionary forces celebrated General John J. Pershing's 50th birthday today.

Veterans living in villages and communities where the United States army pushed the German forces back during the World War planted "Pershing oaks" in honor of the white-haired leader of the American forces in France during the World War.

In Paris, Pershing was honored by the American colony with the exhibition for the first time of a bust of the general by the American sculptor, George Condon. French friends of Pershing made public proposals that he be made an honorary marshal of France.

$3,000 FOR TELEGRAM.

Woman Says Delivery to Husband Broke Home.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 13.—(AP)—A federal jury decided today Mrs. Elizabeth Ford, 28, should be awarded $3,000 damages because the Western Union Telegraph Company delivered a telegram, addressed to her, to a woman friend of her husband's.

Mrs. Ford, who received $75,000, charged the company with delivering the telegram to her husband, Aubrey, it led to the breaking up of their home and caused her much mental suffering. The telegram was signed "Herbert," identified by Mrs. Ford as Herbert Smith, of Wheeling, W. Va., a friend of the family.

Toppling at New Yorker hotel. It possible meet me, Friday night at 7 p. m." the message read. Mrs. Ford was visiting her mother in Virginia in April, 1934, when the telegram came, marked "personal."

A messenger boy refused to deliver the telegram to anyone except Mrs. Ford. Ford, thereupon obtained a copy of the message through a woman friend.

Her husband became suspicious, she said, and finally left her.

Search for Ship Fails.

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Five days of search off Newfoundland for the missing motor vessel Joseph Medill have proven unavailing. Wireless messages from the searching motor schooner, Marie Yvonne, chartered in St. John's, state she has found no trace of the overdue vessel. Other ships traveling the north Atlantic shipping lanes have not sighted the freighter.

Man Who Pushed Huey to Senate Reveals His Presidential Strategy

Senator Had No Third Party Ambitions, But Hoped To Swing Convention, Louisiana Speaker Says, Breaking 4-Year Silence.

(Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.)

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 13.—(UP)—The man who steered Huey P. Long into the United States senate broke a four-year silence tonight and revealed the inside strategy by which the Kingfish was building himself up in the hope of marching into the White House in 1940 as President of the United States.

He is Speaker Allen K. Ellender, of the Louisiana house or representatives—a potato grower and a "screw" politician who managed Long's campaign for the senate and defended him when the Kingfish, as governor, was impeached.

Long had no intention of starting a third political party next year, Ellender said. Instead, he was going into the agrarian west and south in an attempt to line up enough delegates to go to the democratic national convention next summer and try to prevent the renomination of President Roosevelt.

Ready to Bolt.

"His plans were definite," Ellender said. "He was willing to break free from the democratic party and support a progressive republican for president next year. He told me he was going to back Senator Borah to the limit. He liked Senator Norris, too, but he doubted whether Norris could win."

Ellender was asked why Long had decided against bolting both parties next year and trying to ride to power while millions still were dissatisfied with economic conditions.

"There was a technical obstacle in our way," Ellender said. "For instance, here in Louisiana his name, as head of a third party, would have to be written in on ballots by voters in the primary. Election laws are different in most of the states, but we found out we would have been up against something of that kind almost everywhere. You can't win elections by asking people to take a pencil to the polls and write in names."

"We finally convinced Huey of that. So he decided to try to block Roosevelt next year and then take his shot at the White House in 1940."

"Huey was getting ready to take a trip through the country when he was shot," Ellender said. "Everybody thought it was going to be merely a political stumping tour. Actually we were going to study the election laws in each state."

"It would be done quietly, because we wanted to keep the two old parties off guard as long as possible."

"Then we planned to start setting up state organizations for 1940, so we could have had a ticket in the field that conformed to local election laws."

Long had planned to make his appeal increasingly to the south and west, and the filibuster he conducted the last day of congress was a direct bid for the farm vote. It involved making federal loans to cotton and wheat farmers.

"Did he honestly believe he could be elected president?" Ellender was asked.

"He didn't doubt it. That's the big reason he stayed in the senate instead of turning for governor again. He would rather have been governor, but he knew in Washington he was a national figure, and if he was going to stay in the limelight there."

Ellender told about the conference at which it was decided to postpone Long's bid for the presidency.

"We were all set for 1940 and Huey turned around to me and said: 'Allen, you old potato raiser, I think you would make a swell secretary of agriculture. You can't win elections."

CLAY ENTERTAINS MRS. LONG URGED FOR VACANT SEAT.

She May Be Appointed If Opposing Forces Deadlock.

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 13.—(UP)—Attempts are being made to persuade Mrs. Huey P. Long to accept appointment as United States senator to fill her husband's unexpired term, it was learned tonight.

One person close to the family said she repeatedly had refused to accept the position on the grounds "I have my children and they are my whole life. I have no time for anything like senatorial duties."

It was indicated, however, the appointment might be the way out if the late senator's lieutenants reach a deadlock on who should take charge of the Long organization.

If the plan works out, Mrs. Long presumably would hold the post only until January, 1937, when her late husband's term expires.

PRESIDENT'S WIFE MAY MEET HOOVER'S MATE.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(AP)—The capital today was wondering if Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt might drop in on the San Francisco Scout convention October 24 where Chief of the Long organization, Herbert Hoover will be elected president.

Mrs. Roosevelt is honorary president of the Girl Scouts, and in that capacity addressed them at last year's convention in Boston, where she and Mrs. Hoover sat on the same platform for the first time since inauguration day, 1933.

Mrs. Roosevelt then asked Mrs. Hoover when she might expect her portrait, then awaiting finishing touches, as a Girl Scout gift to the White House. It hasn't yet arrived there.

23 GOTHAM TEACHERS FREED AFTER WPA RIOT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Twenty-three school teachers, 10 of them women, were discharged today after being arrested for marching and chanting outside WPA offices here.

The defendants were part of a group of 89 former works progress employees who police charged with creating disorder outside the port authority building, headquarters of WPA Administrator Hugh S. Johnson. The entire group was dismissed recently for taking part in a demonstration.

LONG LEFT LITTLE CASH, HIS SECRETARY CLAIMS

Senator's Will Has Not Been Located; Borrowed Against Life Insurance Policy.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 13.—(AP) Earle Christenberry, private secretary to Senator Huey P. Long, told the Associated Press tonight that "it will surprise everybody how small the senator's estate will be."

Long's will has not been located, he disclosed.

General opinion in this state valued Long's wealth at his death at between $2,250,000 and $5,000,000.

"The senator's will has not been located, but no specific facts have been taken to locate it as yet," said Christenberry. "I have that power of attorney Senator Long in most matters, but I do not have the authority to open his safety deposit box that must be opened in the hunt for the will."

Christenberry replied "no comment" when asked if the boxes referred to were in New Orleans or Washington.

Senator Long carried $50,000 in life insurance, but the secretary said he had not yet had time to examine policies for double indemnity clauses which would apply in the senator's violent death. I suppose it will be up to the hands of an assassin.

Christenberry said, however, that a $28,000 loan stood against the insurance policies.

"It is a surprise everybody how small the senator's estate will be," he said. "The $28,000 was borrowed against the insurance policy two years ago for printing political circulars and in order that the senator might make a deposit to start a run on a bank."

"My job as secretary actually ended with the senator's death, but Mrs. Long asked me to carry on unfinished business and placed me in charge of the estate. I suppose it will be up to me to look for the will, in which Senator Long undoubtedly named an administrator, and then it will be up to the administrator."

Mrs. Long and her three children were in seclusion at the Long mansion, on Audubon boulevard today, following their flight by automobile after the senator's funeral late yesterday.

"All they desire is to be alone," said Christenberry. "I am as broken as they are. I spent the last three years with the senator, with him almost daily, and never took a day off because I did not want to."

GOV. ALLEN'S DAUGHTER TO BE MARRIED TODAY.

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Miss Joyce Love Allen, young daughter of Governor and Mrs. O. K. Allen, will tomorrow evening become the bride of Dr. Frederick J. Stare, of Columbus, Wis., at a scheduled wedding ceremony in the executive mansion.

The ceremony was planned to have been a brilliant social event

ENTIRE FLOOR LEASED FOR OFFICES OF WPA

District Relief Forces To Move Monday Into Western Union Building.

Growth of federal relief work in Atlanta has resulted in the leasing of an entire floor in the Western Union building at Forsyth and Marietta streets to house the administrative and executive departments of the Works Progress Administration.

The lease is one of the largest negotiated in Atlanta in some time and was handled by the Lipscomb-Weyman-Chapman Company, which also has offices in the Western Union building. Rutherford L. Ellis, secretary-treasurer of the company, acted for the realty company.

Moving of the WPA departments will start this afternoon and the first quota of 35 employees will start to work in their new offices Monday morning. The rest of the 75 persons who will be installed in the new quarters will be moved by the end of the week.

The change in offices was announced yesterday by R. C. Watkins, WPA supervisor for District No. 5, which includes the Atlanta and Fulton county area.

"The growth of our work made it necessary for us to find new quarters," said Mr. Watkins.

"We have been sharing the old Telephone building at 190 South Pryor street with the Department of Public Welfare, a city and county organization, and the FERA, another federal unit."

"There was not enough room for all of us here and a great deal of confusion resulted. Our work is purely administrative and we were inconvenient by having to stop our work to direct persons on relief to the DPW or the FERA.

"We will now have a chance to pursue our work without interruption in our new offices on the third floor of the Western Union building and we will have the added advantage of being close to our regional headquarters in the Ten Forsyth Street building."

Persons working on relief will continue to be allotted jobs and receive their checks at the building at 160
South Pryor street.

DAREDEVIL SEEKS 'CRASH PROOF' CARS

"Lucky" Teter, Who Will Appear at Fair, Has Safety Ambition.

Earl M. "Lucky" Teter, auto dare-devil who makes a profession of wrecking automobiles, and who has just been signed for a two-day performance of his troupe of "hell drivers" during the Southeastern Fair, confessed yesterday that his ambition is to build a "crash-proof" passenger car.

Teter and his "hell drivers" will perform an amazing succession of daredevil feats during their two-day thrill show at the fair, on Wednesday, October 2, and again on Saturday, October 5.

They will feature head-on collisions of speeding autos, roll-overs at 60 miles an hour; triple-ski jumps, auto hurdles, blasting through a blazing board wall on motorcycles, and other neck-risking achievements.

But when, at last, Teter retires from the business of manufacturing automobile accidents for the edification of the paid customers, he plans to devote his attention to perfection of a "crash-proof" machine.

The car he has in mind will resist
all road hazards, double the safety factor in driving and make motoring at least 50 per cent death-proof, he says.

Teter's confession to this safety ambition was made Friday when he came here to sign a contract for the two-day performance of his "hell drivers," with Mike Benton, president of the Southeastern Fair.

"Teter has survived more auto crashes than any man alive. He is rated as the nation's No. 1 daredevil.
Certainly, after years of deliberately wrecking automobiles, he should know something about making them safer," Benton said.

THE HULL STATEMENT

As an appeal for world peace and a step toward averting war, the statement of Secretary of State Hull in which the position of the United States, as a signatory of the Kellogg-Briand pact, is set forth in connection with the Italo-Ethiopian crisis, will be universally approved. The statement carefully avoids involving the United States, either directly or indirectly, in the Afro-European controversy, and does not suggest that the provisions of the pact be invoked. It simply makes an appeal that the present controversy be considered in the light of the fundamental principles outlined in the pact.

As a signatory of the pact, the United States could scarcely do less, in view of the imminent threat of war between not only Italy and Ethiopia but other European and African peoples.

Should the American plea not be heeded, and if war must come, it will be none of our business and we must avoid becoming involved in it.

One thing must be clearly understood, that the United States will not permit itself to become involved in any war, anywhere or under any conditions, save in the event of its invasion by an armed enemy—of which, fortunately, there is little possibility.

We have spoken our hope for peace, and beyond that we should not and will not go.

HOUSING THE MULTITUDES

A statistical authority states this country is short about 900,000 houses and one-family apartments in which to properly house the people of the United States. In so far as the term "properly house" is concerned, the estimate is short of actual needs, and, at the same time, practically every city and town in the country has varying numbers of vacant residences and apartments of all sizes.

This situation is the result of the depression; loss of positions and reductions in salaries of breadwinners, and consequent "doubling up" of families; storing of sale of household furniture and equipment by family units which take small quarters in hotels, boarding and rooming houses.

Residence and apartment building has not kept up with the increase of population, but the increase of people needing homes is gradually filling up the excess housing which obtained back in the days when the depression had reached its lowest point, and unless building receives an impetus it will not be long until there will be an acute shortage.

Desirable building sites are plentiful at prices that are attractive to families which want to build, but when they have made their selection, have plans drawn and submit same to a contractor, they are appalled at the figures given them.

Labor and building materials are so high that the ultimate cost of a residence becomes prohibitive to the average citizen who desires a home for his family; and when the investor who would erect an apartment building figures his cost and the rent he would be forced to charge tenants in order to secure even a low rate of interest on the money invested, he passes up the proposition and seeks some other form of investment for his money.

Thus a condition is created that is difficult of solution. Material dealers will cite figures to show that they make only a reasonable profit, while labor exhibits high cost of living and loss of time between jobs to show that it cannot accept a reduction in wages.

If labor could be assured regular employment, and dealers could be assured of volume with reasonable profit, there might be found a way out, helping both labor and the building industry, with a resultant upswing in business in general.

INCREASING DIVERSIFICATION

The fruits of Georgia's "cow, hog and hen" campaign, ardently championed by such leaders as Joe Lawrence, of the Nashville Herald, and Henry McIntosh, of the Albany Herald, and to which The Constitution has for years given unlimited space, are plainly visible to every observing person who travels the highways from one part of the state to another—large acreages of small grains in their seasons, legumes of various kinds, broad fields of permanent pastures, home gardens and orchards, and most noticeable of all, large herds of beef and dairy cattle.

In a recent issue of the Herald, Editor Lawrence points out the large increase that has been made in cattle, citing that Berrien county now has 15,104 head, as compared with 6,652 five years ago. Writing in regard to increased diversification, Mr. Lawrence stresses the importance of agricultural fairs and livestock shows as educational agencies whose benefits cannot be overestimated in this transition period when from all appearances the state is destined to become a real beef, pork, butter, chicken and egg producing section.

For years it has been dinned into the ears of our farmers that natural conditions in Georgia fit it to be the best cattle state in the country, and now we have conclusive proof that the progressive agriculturists, who have abandoned the all-cotton program for comprehensive diversification, are gradually growing into the production of beef and dairy cattle.

A preliminary report of the Georgia farm census, discloses that in five years there has been an increase in cows from 670,062 to 1,100,138, and in heifers two years old or over from 388,152 to 567,175. These increases will be multiplied with greater rapidity as the years go by, for the ground work has been completed to build up a great industry. Basic herds of high grade stock are located all over the state, and a farmer does not have to travel far from home to inspect herds from which he desires to buy. He has learned how to provide seasonal and permanent pasture, how to feed his stock for best results and to care for his animals to prevent disease. Markets are being opened at various points and these will be duplicated elsewhere as demand for them increases.

An important factor that accompanies the development of the industry is that the Georgia farmer has learned that there is no market for scrub cattle; that the small, native animal can be bred out of existence in a few years by the use of high grade bulls of the type desired, and that there is a market at fair prices for the heavier type of grades, as well as for pure-breeds. Business interests in every section are meeting farmers half way, assisting progressive individuals financially as well as aiding them in finding markets for beef type cattle and establishing creameries to care for the products of the rapidly increasing dairy herds. In this the civic clubs of various cities have played an important part, for the business men know that with a prosperous farming community surrounding them the towns and cities will in turn become prosperous.

Georgia is primarily an agricultural state, and with our farmers swinging rapidly toward complete diversification, general prosperity will increase with the passing of years.

FAIR ENOUGH

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

"Gawd, how the wind blew!"

Of all the hardy pioneers in history it is doubtful that any group ever enjoyed such a heroic and romantic press as those footless casuals, including bartenders and professional gamblers as well as laborers, who went to Alaska and the Yukon in the gold rush. With the passing of the years their experiences have been glorified, their sufferings intensified in writings of the "Gawd, how the wind blew!" school until now it is accepted without question that anyone who lived through a mild autumn snow flurry in the Great Silent Spaces of the North in those days must have been a very special sort of man. Not yet has anyone suggested that all authenticated survivors should be awarded medals, with extra oak leaves for all who came down with the flu, but that must be merely an oversight.

The pioneers of the northern gold rush were lucky in that Jack London, Rex Beach and Robert W. Service went along to write their story for them. Probably, at the time, as they wrestled the dance hall ladies through the slushy measures of the cake walk, or belted up to the bar to take their drinks, it did not occur to the pioneers that they were undergoing great hardship. But then, years afterward, the historians of the episode caught the public imagination and the moving pictures portrayed the scene for those millions who are too lazy to read, the boys of the old Nevada boom, and realize what supermen they must have been. They were a comparatively small group and they enjoyed the distinction being conferred on them. Naturally, nobody among them was going to spoil the story by insisting that a real hard winter in northern Montana or New Hampshire might inflict comparable hardships. The result has been that a member of the gold rush alumni never lacks an audience when he lectures to sit down and describe snow drifts or a cold day.

Where's the hardship? Yet, if the ladies of the dance halls were able to be born and live, that would seem to suggest an inconsistency somewhere. It seems reasonable to believe that it was as cold for these people as for the pioneers, and hardy men in their felt coats and woollies. Moreover, so much of the literature of the gold rush has to do with gambling houses and saloons warmed to suffocation by pot-bellied iron stoves stocked with pine knots that, upon critical inspection, one is moved to inquire just where the hardship came in.

The thermometers registered 33 below zero in certain Connecticut towns during a cold snap two years ago, but the children went to school. At Lake Placid, N. Y., where the winter Olympics were held, severe cold was regarded as a commercial asset as it attracted visitors for the winter sports which cannot be fully enjoyed unless the temperature is below zero.

In Minnesota, before the days of the automobile, children plodded through the drifts on foot in very low temperatures, and in the days of the automobile, children plodded through the drifts on foot in very low temperatures, and in the days of the automobile, children plodded through the drifts on foot in very low temperatures.

Can't Compare This is not to contend that the Algonquians and the Yukon were exactly tropical in the period dealt with, but merely to point out that, after all, there were cold and physical hardships in the war of 1812 began, four-fifths of Michigan's population was still French.

Early Trading Posts. "After John J. Macgregor and La Salle explored the Mississippi valley, traders in canoes and flat-bottomed boats traveled down the Mississippi, trading furs and goods to the Indians. The French traders were known as the 'Fur Traders' and the Indians as the 'Fur Traders'.

Winnipeg. There were neither poets nor novelists among them, however, as men who have come through hardship they are far outranked by the gold rush pioneers who sold their souls for a considerable portion of their gold.

It is an unhappy coincidence that of the three pioneers who have met, one was tried for contributing to the delinquency of a child, another served time for moral turpitude and the third for being a burglar and one of the most notorious of the gold rush era.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

My Dear Louise:
This is to be a mild scolding, so let me begin by proving my motives respectable.

You know I am not a "tightwad." I regard money as something to use, and I know of no greater imbecility common among men than the practice of hoarding hard-earned cash for the benefit of underserving relatives, lawyers and the tax man.

People who have money should spend it to provide jobs for other people. And if they have any left after supplying their own needs, they should give it wisely and generously to help the unfortunate.

That's the way I feel about it, as you know, and that should prevent any suspicion that I am moralizing to save a nickel.

When Bernhard was asked to give her definition of foolish spending, she answered: "Spending a dollar without getting a dollar's worth of fun in return."

That, my dear, is your sin. You spend money like a green country kid at a carnival.

I often wonder why men of science think up complicated intelligence tests when they can learn more by observing how the subject spends his money. In all seriousness, there is no better test of good sense.

Money represents so much work, so much effort, so much time, so much life. When you spend it, you are exchanging a portion of your life for the thing you buy.

If you had but one more day to live, would you give an hour of that time for a tin whistle? Then why exchange an hour's earnings for the whistle?

When you get your money's worth in comfort, beauty, pleasure or self-respect, you are spending sensibly—whether you buy bread or roses.

But when you let your money dribble away, without getting anything in return that you really desire or really enjoy, you are guilty of plain stupidity.

There is nothing sillier than waste. A dripping faucet, a light burning needlessly, food in the garbage can—these are the common evidences of the quality called dumbness. Men are wasteful when their wits are addled by liquor; others because they are wasteful by nature.

Some day you will have a man to work for you. And you will encourage him by spending his money wisely, or insure his defeat by throwing it away. Love, DAD.

BITS OF FRANCE IN U. S.

"In celebrating its bicentennial recently, Sainte Genevieve, Mo., calls attention to the strong influence the French have exercised in the Mississippi valley," says a bulletin from the Washington D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

From the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico, the region on each side of the Mississippi is sprinkled with French names, and the French have left their mark on the landscape in many ways.

Hardly daring, these courtes de bois adopted the habits of Indians, setting their traps in frozen swamps, and paddling down stream along their birch bark canoes or dugouts, overland from headwater to headwater.

Living like Indians, using Indian tools, but claiming to be French, they found most of the Indians friendly. They smoked peace pipes beside Indian council fires, and sometimes, when as wives, presented their hosts with tobacco, mirrors and other trinkets, and in return had beaver skins and beaver heads.

The fur traders went up the St. Lawrence and westward through the Great Lakes; they poured southward by hundreds into what are now Michigan, Wisconsin, and Illinois. When the War of 1812 began, four-fifths of Michigan's population was still French.

Early Trading Posts. "After John J. Macgregor and La Salle explored the Mississippi valley, traders in canoes and flat-bottomed boats traveled down the Mississippi, trading furs and goods to the Indians. The French traders were known as the 'Fur Traders' and the Indians as the 'Fur Traders'.

HEALTH TALKS

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

For years I have had a dandy time telling the confused layman that ordinary anemia cannot be cured with iron. It is a wonder I have been permitted to go on saying that all these years.

He speaks the passing of the power of the nostrum evil. But perhaps the explanation of the seeming heresy might otherwise bring to bear. The explanation is quite simple. Ordinary anemia is caused by some such disease as incipient tuberculosis, a silent or not very troublesome focus of infection, repeated small bleedings which are perhaps occult or unnoticed, or the habit of taking various counterpoisons, or the use of iron, which destroys red corpuscles, or occupational or domestic exposure to some poison which destroys corpuscles.

Then here a year or two ago I nearly upset my own apple cart by coming out unequivocally in favor of enormous doses of iron for anemia. I even published the recipe for a suitable iron medicine which any one who can read can make for himself. (No time to go into the details here—it is all described in the booklet "Blood and Health," which will be mailed on request if you enclose 10 cents and a stamped envelope bearing your address. Omit the stamped envelope, the address or the coin and you will probably not receive the booklet.)

Each large number of readers who have assured me this home made blood tonic has done wonders for them. I hoped that it might hit a suitable case here and there, and I thought it would do no harm in any case even if it did no good. So I felt that Hippocrates would approve publishing the recipe, and I didn't care what anyone else might think about it.

The experiment convinced me that there was more nutritional anemia than I had estimated in this country. For each case of anemia, I found that the large number of readers who have assured me this home made blood tonic has done wonders for them. I hoped that it might hit a suitable case here and there, and I thought it would do no harm in any case even if it did no good. So I felt that Hippocrates would approve publishing the recipe, and I didn't care what anyone else might think about it.

Frankly, I have been astonished by the large number of readers who have assured me this home made blood tonic has done wonders for them. I hoped that it might hit a suitable case here and there, and I thought it would do no harm in any case even if it did no good. So I felt that Hippocrates would approve publishing the recipe, and I didn't care what anyone else might think about it.

Well, even now I haven't justified the enormous doses of iron, is it? Never mind. Better luck next time.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Cracked Toes. Opportunity to thank you for the formula for Whitfield's ointment for cracked toes. I had tried all sorts of fancy and expensive remedies, but the ointment gave progressively worse results after five nights it disappeared as if by magic.

Answer—Which may or may not be evident from the formula, the ointment is an "athlete's foot" ringworm, fungus, dermatophytosis, or what do you call it. Whitfield's ointment is not a had remedy for simple cracking of the skin from maceration, in cases of excessive sweating of the feet. Then, too, it is an excellent emergency remedy for the dew itch of bookworms. Penetration of the bookworm larvae. Recipe for Whitfield's ointment:

Sassafras oil 15 grains
Benzoin oil 25 grains
Scent petroleum 2 drams
Cocaine oil enough to make One Ounce of Salve

Directions: Apply at night to affected patches of skin, for a week, then wait a week, and repeat if necessary. This and other remedies for foot itch and other parasitic infestations are given in complete practical form in the booklet "Unhidden Guests," for copy of which send 10 cents coin and a stamped envelope bearing your address.

IT'S IN THE NEWS THAT A YOUNG SCIENTIST SAYS HE'S BRINGING 'EM ALIVE AFTER THEY'VE BEEN FROZEN SOLID!

SILHOUETTES

BY RALPH T. JONES.

Oh, the editor man. To the news report ran. For something to put on Page One: He found nothing there. To create any stir, For Huey the Kingfish has gone!

There was a farmer who came to my house peddling south Georgia cane syrup. He told me he was born in Georgia but admitted he was of Irish descent on both sides of his parentage. In fact, with a face like his, it would be futile to deny it. You could almost smell the peat bogs and see the cobble streets of Dublin when you looked at him.

Georgia cane syrup, fresh, being a weakness at our house, friend wife made a purchase. While she was in the house finding the change for payment I conversed with the Irish Georgian. I kidded him a little about Ireland and he accepted it good-naturedly.

Finally he asked me: "And what mought yore breedin' be?" "English, Scotch and Welsh," I told him, adding, "but thank God no Irish."

Just then the wife appeared and handed him his money. He jingled the coins in his hand a moment then, with a grin, ended the conversation with: "Well, the Irishman has yore money, anyway!"

There Was a Vacancy For a Cub Reporter. Years ago, before prohibition was considered a remote possibility, there was a murder committed in a famous old saloon on Alabama street. It was mid-afternoon and all the reporters on The Constitution were out of the office, busy on their regular runs.

In the office was the city editor, the late Fred Lewis, and one very raw cub. With no choice, Fred told the cub to rush down to the saloon and get the details he could before the dead man was removed.

The cub hesitated, then said he could not go. "There's nothing to keep you," roared Fred. "Make it snappy before the undertaker gets there."

"No," said the cub. "I'm sorry, but I can't go on that story."

"Why not?" yelled the editor, thoroughly irate at this story.

"I promised my mother I'd never enter a saloon," said the boy.

Where Football Is a Serious Affair. High school football players probably take their games more seriously than the college teams. There is one Atlanta suburban town whose high school coach orders his players to be in their homes not later than 10 o'clock every night. If he sees or hears of any one of them being on the street after that hour the explanation has to be mighty good or the boy finds himself out of the squad.

And one day this week a youngster had just purchased a slice of cake in the school cafeteria when the coach reached over and took it out of his hand.

"No sweets, son, while you're on the team," the coach reproved.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today. Around Georgia in six days! This is the sad tale of the Atlanta Automobile Association for next week.

Starting early next Monday morning in his 60-hour power Locomobile, G. C. Candler, president of the Atlanta Automobile Association, accompanied by Frank Weldon, chairman of the All-Round-the-State Tour's executive committee, will make the circuit, approximately 950 miles.

And Fifty Years Ago. Alfred Blount, a negro, died suddenly Friday night on Wheat street. His body has not yet been buried on account of a misunderstanding between his family and the undertaker. Persons residing near the house are greatly dissatisfied with the long wake and will lay the matter before the health officers today.

ATLANTA BANDIT TRIO SOUGHT IN ALABAMA

Ride-rob Suspects Reported
Seen Near Birmingham
in Stolen Car.

Search for three Atlanta ride-robbers who stole two cars and $64 in two holdups Thursday night and lost a gun when a third victim resisted, was centering in Birmingham last night. Police Radio Operator Dick Alford reported the trio had been sighted near there in one of the stolen machines.

Their first victim, J. T. Lyle, of 929 Euclid avenue, N. E., was slugged and managed to knock a pistol from one of the three men when they accosted him in his parked car at Cain and Peachtree streets.

The trio next robbed A. B. Sheffield, of 737 Catherine street, of his car and $2 in front of the new post-office. They told him they had just slugged a man who resisted and would treat him likewise.

At the Sunset Inn, on Jonesboro road, the trio struck up an acquaintance with Woodson Van Daele, of 194 Whitehall street. They went with him while he took two women companions home. While driving the trio to the home of Van Daele, they held up and robbed of $62 and his sedan. The men tied his hands. He freed himself and walked to a telephone to summon police. His description of the men tallied with that given police by Sheffield and Lyle.

FINAL RITES TODAY FOR JOHN GRAHAM

Leaders of Bar and State To Pay Last Tribute to Supreme Court Official.

Distinguished jurists, members of the legal fraternity and high officials of state and city government will gather at 10 o'clock this morning at the Sacred Heart church to pay a last measure of respect to John M. Graham, assistant reporter of the Georgia supreme court and Georgia court of appeals, who died Thursday night after a brief illness.

One of the oldest state officials in point of service and one of the best known and loved, Mr. Graham was at one time secretary to Alexander H. Stephens, vice president of the Confederacy. Final rites will be conducted by the Rev. Father John Emmert and burial will be in Oakland cemetery. Judges and officials of both the supreme and appellate courts will attend in a body. Chosen from among his closest friends, the following members of the Atlanta Bar Association will serve as an honorary escort: J. J. Spaulding, Philip H. Alston, R. W. Crenshaw, Walter S. Dillon, Judge Harry Dodd, W. C. Hendrix, Linton C. Hopkins, Judge Horace Holden, Gordon F. Mitchell, George W. Stevens, John L. Tye and Edgar Watkins Sr.

Another honorary escort will be formed of members of the Atlanta Lawyers' Club. Chosen by the president, Emerson Gardner, they are Robert C. Alston, Logan Brockley, Morris Brandon Sr., R. M. Dillard, Paul S. Ethridge Sr., Willis M. Everett Sr., Arthur Heyman, John McCallum, George Rush, John M. Slaton, W. D. Thomson and Courtland S. Winn.

BREAKS OPEN MAIL BOX
SO HE CAN GET NEW LEG
WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Merce Osorio is back in jail for a new leg.

The Bureau of Prisons said today that Merce was arrested for breaking open a letter box in his home city of San Juan, Puerto Rico, in 1932. They sent him to Atlanta penitentiary for a year.

At the end of his term, he went back to San Juan with an artificial leg and a set of false teeth. He sold the leg for cash.

In August, Merce was arrested again for breaking open the same box. He told the judge he wanted to get back in jail so he could get a new leg. The judge ordered him back to Atlanta for four years.

Whether he gets the new leg is up to the Atlanta warden.

LOREE MAY MAKE BID FOR RAIL SECURITIES

Controlling Interest in Van Sweringen Empire Goes on Block September 30.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Wall Street was busy with conjecture today over the possibility that outside interests might grab control of the vast Van Sweringen railroad empire when the controlling interest goes under the auctioneer's hammer September 30.

Leo F. Loree, stormy veteran of many a railroad deal, and head of the Delaware & Hudson Company, caused considerable excitement when he returned to say whether he might bid for the vital Van Sweringen securities.

Some Wall Street circles, however, pointed out the emergency transportation act of 1932 might make it difficult for the 76-year-old railroader to break into the Van Sweringen picture. The legislation, it was explained, would appear to make it necessary for the Delaware & Hudson Company to obtain permission from the U. S. C. to buy control of the Van Sweringen roads. Loree has had many brushes with the U. S. C., it was recalled, and in a cold portion of them has been unsuccessful.

The value of the securities, which are being auctioned by a creditor banking group headed by J. P. Morgan & Company as result of default of certain Van Sweringen securities against which they had been pledged as collateral, was said by security analysts to be difficult to estimate. The Allegheny corporation securities, to be sold, however, were thought to have a current value on the basis of market quotations, of only about $3,400,000, and since this is the vital part of the securities, it is the key to the key to control of the railroads, it appeared it might be possible to acquire control of the $3,400,000,000 railroad empire with a comparatively few millions.

The total collateral to be sold, for which market quotations were available, had an approximate value of approximately $8,000,000.

CAPT. GRANT DIES AT CLARKESVILLE

Georgian Who Saw Active Service in Navy Is Taken by Death.

CLARKESVILLE, Ga., Sept. 13.—Captain Noel W. Grant, 58, long in the service of the United States navy, died at his home here today.

He was a native of Clarksville and was a graduate of North Georgia Agricultural College at Dahlonega. Captain Grant was commissioned by President Woodrow Wilson as a captain in the United States navy. He saw active service on the Idaho and Delaware warships. His last tour of duty was on the Lexington, an aircraft carrier, and was the staff of Admiral J. M. Reeves of the United States navy.

One year ago he was retired from active duty and since then has resided at his home on the Clayton-Hawes highway.

Captain Grant is survived by his wife, Mrs. Rose Grant; one daughter, Mrs. Grant, of Seneca, S. C., and one sister, Mrs. J. C. Hood, of Clarksville, Tenn.

The pallbearers will be Colonel Robert McMillan, Captain Coyne E. E. E. Reeves, Judge F. E. Gabeles, Sheriff Paris Wilbanks and W. S. Whitworth.

SAVANNAH RIVER BODY TO VISIT POWER SITE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's board today determined feasibility of a proposed $187,000,000 power, flood control and navigation project on the Savannah river, in Georgia, today completed plans for its study.

Announcement was made this session would be held in Augusta around October 12, when the board plans inspecting the proposed site. The board, which held its organizational meeting yesterday, named Colonel A. L. Brown, south Atlantic division army engineer, as chairman. He expressed hope the board would be able to complete its study and have a report for the President by January 1.

Other members of the board are Roger B. McWhorter, chief engineer of the Federal Power Commission, and Sherman M. Woodward, of the National Resources Board.

The proposal calls for the construction of a huge dam on the river above Augusta.

2 SAVANNAH WOMEN NAMED TO CLUB POSTS

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 13.—Two members of the Savannah Business and Professional Women's Club have just been appointed chairmen of committees of the Georgia Federation. They are Mrs. Katherine Higgins and Mrs. Anne J. McCall.

The appointments were announced from Macon by Mrs. Viola Ross Napier, president of the state federation. Mrs. Higgins is now serving as state public director. Mrs. Rivers was appointed as chairman of the state health committee.

The appointments were made at the annual convention of the organization held this summer in Portland, Ore.

Mrs. Kilgo was born in LaGrange in 1853 and was the widow of Moses M. Kilgo who died in 1922. Mrs. Kilgo had been in Rome and Floyd county for the past 40 years. She had been a member of Trinity Methodist church for many years.

She is survived by one son, O. P. Kilgo, and five daughters. Mrs. C. J. Marshall, all of Rome; Mrs. W. H. Hoffer, of Dalton; and Mrs. G. T. Turner, of Gadsden, Ala.; one sister, Mrs. S. S. Strickland, and one brother, J. W. Lewis, of LaFayette.

GROCERIES, AUTO TO BE GIVEN AWAY

City Salesmen's Association Holding Carnival for Benefit of Charity Fund.

Twenty-five Atlantans tonight will draw prizes ranging from baskets of groceries to a 1935 V-Eight Ford at the closing night of the gala show and carnival staged at the auditorium-annex by the Atlanta City Salesmen's Association.

Cecil H. Floyd, president of the organization, which is staging the event to increase charity funds, last night invited all Atlanta to attend tonight's closing performance, which begins at 8 o'clock.

In addition to the prizes for members of the audience, 10 stellar acts will compete tonight in the finals of the amateur show, for the $100 which will be split among the five best performers.

Tuning in on the program and Malcolm E. Tucker, director of the carnival, predicted that the auditorium will be filled to overflowing.

Those who entered the final competition for the five cash prizes ranging from $50 to $5 as a result of last night's competition, follow:

Frances Craft, accordion soloist; Bryan Judge, singer; Edward Schultz, singer; Hays Griffith and Clyde Smith, of Windsor, who staged a black-face act; Helen Cook, dancer; Margaret Keith, singer and dancer; Britton Sanders, impersonator; Hassler Boys, comedy team; Ben Gustum, impersonator and Nick Lester's Rhythm Workers.

Norman Crane, well known in local entertainment circles, who as master of ceremonies performed with professional skill last night, will direct the stage presentation again tonight.

"We want Atlantans to join us in an evening of fun and at the same time contribute to our charity fund," Floyd said. "In addition, someone is going to drive a new Ford V-8 away. There also is dancing and exhibits."

AT ATLANTA'S THEATERS

Joe Brown Laugh-Riot In Georgia's Feature

In "Bright Lights," which started yesterday as the feature attraction at the Georgia theater, Joe E. Brown appears in what is probably his best picture thus far, for Joe sings, dances, does acrobatic stunts with the famous tumbler, the Maxwell, and apparently jerks all the antics from his bag of comedy. The show is a comedy of "back stage" with songs coming in naturally as part of the action at a theatrical troupe.

Beautiful chorus girls appear in tunic and romantic song. A dance numbers staged by Busby Berkeley, who directs the entire production. Joe's antics are ridiculously laughing-provoking, though the show as a whole has many moments of pathos and romance.

The story by Lois Leeson centers about Joe, a hood and comic in a burlesque show, whose stage partner is also his wife, Ann Dvorak. Though happy, a hint of trouble seems to come when Patricia Ellis, a madcap waitress, as part of the show as an adventure.

A publicity manager of a big Broadway production, played by Joe E. Brown, recognizes the heiress and engages her to play on Broadway. He is also impressed with Joe's act and signs him for many times the salary he is getting.

Ann is shut out in the cold and soon returns to her old vaudeville job. How Patricia took to a reconciliation with Ann, forms the plot around which the action develops to a surprising climax and a satisfactory ending.

There are four songs. One is sung by Ann Dvorak, one by Patricia Ellis and one by Esther Burke with a chorus. All three were written by Dixon and Allie Wrubel. The fourth song, sung by Joe, was written by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby.

An interesting newswire is included in the program. —E. E.

Major Bowes' Amateurs Are Hit at Loew's Grand

Major Bowes' amateur hour on the NBC radio Sunday is one of the most popular current broadcast features. The reason is apparent this week at Loew's Grand theater, where the prize-winning broadcast competitors are appearing.

Major Bowes knows music and apparently he also knows the theater. The group here, if they are representative of all the units, justify the acclaim with which the programs have been received in other cities.

The major, with his now famous song, is represented by Loring Smith, who serves as master of ceremonies. The amateurs include Marie Woods, a presentation of a Sophie Tucker; Tom Hinson, who plays a dueler; McCormack Hering, who yodels; Marion O'Connor, mezzo soprano; Dore Siesel, impersonator; Madeline O'Neill, songstress; Bess Sweeney, accordionist; Skeets Simmons, barnyard imitator; Madeline O'Neill and the Red Hot Peppers, who sing. It would be difficult to select the best from this splendid group.

The feature film is one big laugh. Laurel and Hardy are the stars and the picture is a comedy. "Bonnie Scotland," which goes to Scotland to claim a fortune. Expecting millions, he receives a few pieces of useless furniture. From the house he goes to the Clyde the action shifts to India.

Feature at Paramount Is Sophisticated Comedy

Sophisticated and witty is the feature film, "Accent on Youth," which opens last night at the Paramount theater. The film brings one of the comedy hits of the current Broadway season to the screen.

Performed by Herbert Marshall, as a playwright desperately in love with Sylvia Sydney, and Philip Reed as Marshall's competitor.

Marshall has conscientious qualms about the disparity in their ages. Of course the audience is in on the secret that they love each other.

It seems, however, that Reed has no qualms about attempting to win Sylvia's love, despite the fact that he realizes she loves Marshall.

However, young Miss Sydney, piqued by his seeming indifference to her, encourages Reed's suit. There's a somewhat new twist in this film. She goes about and marries him. From this point on the complications develop in a highly entertaining manner. It would not be fair to the prospective patron to attempt to summarize the picture in large doses of plot. However, it is rather unusual and worth seeing.

The picture is directed by Wesley Ruggles and the supporting cast includes Astrid Allwyn, Ernest Cossart and Holmes Herbert.—A. C. L.

CHAMLEE AND DOWELL SPEAK TO BAPTISTS

WAVERLY HALL, Ga., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Addresses by Dr. Aquilla Chamlee, president of Bessie Tift College, and Dr. Spright Dowell, Mercer University head, featured the closing session of the Columbus Baptist Association convention today.

A number of reports were made at the concluding meeting of the two-day convention. The Gentian church was selected as the meeting place for next year.

The convention was the 107th of the association.

John Floyd Chapter Hear U.S.D. 1812

A historical paper on "The Causes of the War of 1812" read by Mrs. John E. Lane, featured the quarterly meeting of the General John Floyd chapter on Thursday at Rhodes Memorial hall. A copy has been requested by Miss Blair, of the State Department of Archives, and a copy will be placed with the records of the national society that the other state societies of the U. S. D. of 1812, Miss Annie Laurie Hill, chapter president, presided. The pledge to the flag was led by Mrs. Moreland Speer and the American Creed was read by Mrs. James A. Wood. New members introduced were Mesdames Mark Cooper Bowman, J. N. Bateman, James A. Broach, John Floyd Carmichael, Theodore Hemmingway, Mrs. J. B. Phillips, Miss Dixie Stevens. A number of lineage papers are now pending with the national board and will be accepted before the next meeting.

Mrs. James A. Wood, chairman of gifts and loans, brought before the chapter the suggestion of the president national, Mrs. John F. Weinmann, that a collection be made by each chapter of pictures of homes of the 1812 ancestors, and as the first gift to this collection she presented a beautiful picture of the home of her 1812 ancestor, John Rushin. Mrs. Hayden Shover will present a portrait of her 1812 ancestor's wife, and other portraits and pictures of homes of 1812 ancestors were promised.

Miss Hill presented to the chapter an autographed first edition copy of the new book "1812," by Francesa Falk Miller, a former president of the Illinois Society, U. S. D. of 1812, which is a history in verse of the 1812 period, recommended by the national society to be placed in the historical and genealogical department of Rhodes hall. Reports were given by Mrs. Moreland Speer, Miss Lois Riles, Mrs. John E. Lane and Miss Hill of the unveiling of the memorial to Robert Humber and Parham Lindsay, two soldiers of the War of 1812, buried in Butts county on September 8. Biographical sketches of the soldiers were given by Mrs. John E. Lane and addresses were made by the state president, Miss Annie Laurie Hill, Mrs. Lucius McConnell, corresponding secretary national; the Hon. Threath Moore, of Jackson; Hon. Pliny H. Weaver, mayor of Jackson, and the Hon. John R. L. Smith, of Macon, the latter a grandson of Parham Lindsay. The Boy Scouts of Jackson had a prominent part in the exercises, bearing the United States and chapter flags and leading in the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

Mrs. Lane, chapter historian, stated at the meeting that she has found the names of 400 Georgia soldiers of 1812 which have not been previously known, 16 of these having been from Butts county. Mrs. Lane is now preparing the list of these soldiers and proof of their services which will be placed by the General John Floyd chapter in the State Department of Archives and which will be a priceless contribution to Georgia's history of the 1812 period.

NANCY PAGE

Couldn't You Modernize a Room This Way?

By FLORENCE La GANKE.

In the morning mail came an invitation from one of the smart downtown shops. According to the announcement, the interior decorating department had just done over a series of exhibition rooms and was asking the store's patrons to come and see and to get ideas.

Fall always means freshening of the house. With the new federal money available for some of the equipment for modernizing a home it is now possible to use that money for big equipment and then to use a small part of the family income for additional purchases such as curtains, hangings and the like.

In one of the rooms the decorator had solved the question of the space between two windows. It was not wide enough to do much of anything with and yet the space would look queer if only one pair of draperies were used. For the sake of needed light the one pair was all that should be put at the two windows.

Parties Are Planned For Bridal Couple.

Miss Louise Calhoun, who will act as bridesmaid at the wedding of Miss Sara Yancy Hewlett, to Lamar Ellis, on October 9, has planned a breakfast to be given on Saturday morning, October 5, at her home on Pace's Ferry road. Covers will be placed for members of the bridal party and a few additional friends.

On Sunday, October 6, Mr. and Mrs. Hybun Clay will be hosts at an appetizing party at their home on Cherokee road in compliment to the popular young couple.

The marriage of Miss Hewlett and Mr. Ellis will be an event of social importance taking place at St. Luke's Episcopal church.

Crepe Myrtle Club.

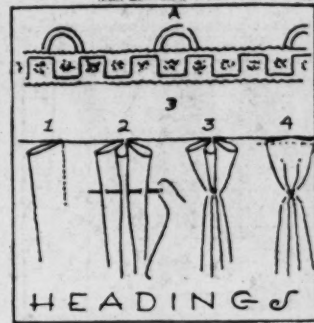

The regular bi-monthly meeting of the Crepe Myrtle Garden Club met at the residence of the president, Mrs. J. L. Benton, who presided on Thursday, and present were Mesdames Homer Christian, J. R. Gluck, H. R. Murphy, E. L. Walthall, P. C. Bouck, C. C. Storey, Paul Chipman, Miss Daisy Harp and visitors were Miss Edna Ivey and Mrs. Marvin Johnston.

Attendance prize was won by Mrs. Homer Christian, and the club meets September 18 at the residence of Mrs. H. R. Murphy on Confederate avenue.

Decatur Auxiliary.

A meeting of the Harold Byrd Post and unit of American Legion and auxiliary of Decatur was held last evening in the Agnes Lee church house. Guest speakers were Ben Watkins, of Macon, commander-elect of the Georgia department, American Legion, and Lieutenant Stanley Jones, of the American Legion.

The boys and girls' band of the College Park post furnished music. A social hour was held following the meeting.

The decorator used mirror glass cut in panel form to fit the space. It added sparkle and brilliance to the room and solved the question. The mirror made the two windows a unit.

That same store showed women, on request, the way to make headings for draperies. The simplest kind may be purchased already to sew on. The heading braid has loops woven in along the top at regular intervals. The pole runs through those and when the curtain is pulled together the folds are even and regular.

In making French pleats, once the size and number of them has been computed the making follows the steps shown in "1" the material is folded and stitched down the depth of the heading. In "2" it is folded to make three small folds. "3" shows the way to fasten the pleat. "4" shows the method used in the drapery is to go under a valance or cornice board as shown in the top illustration.

Giants Beat Cardinals, 13-10, in Tenth To Square Series

BREAK O'DAY!
By Ralph McKee

NATIONAL AMATEUR GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP, CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 13.—It develops that the south is well represented in the amateur tournament after all.

It so happens that Lawson Little, now of San Francisco, Cal., is a Tennessean. But because he and his father have moved from army post to army post his home state has been lost. "I always consider myself a Tennessean," he said this afternoon as he sipped a bit of import from Scotland along with a mixture of soda. "My people are all from near Shelbyville."

And so tomorrow Lawson Little goes into the finals with Walter Emery, of Shawnee and Oklahoma City, a southwestern representative. It is a bit of a solace since our Atlanta entries went out on Thursday.

It is quite a story, this one. Because it so happens that Lawson Little got his start in golf in China, where his father was stationed with an army post. And Walter Emery began the game in the Dutch East Indies, where his father was then in business.

So, tomorrow two golf games which had their origin in the orient will meet on the shores of Lake Erie, where Admiral Perry defeated the British, with the American golf title at stake.

They are very different types. Little looks like a tackle or a fullback. Emery might be a halfback or an end. Little frets a bit and is inclined to become irritated, although he controls it well. Emery is cold as ice. Nothing phases him. He smokes cigarettes incessantly and is never without one.

THE KING OF DEUCES.

Emery might be designated as the king of deuces or deuces wild.

He has played seven matches and has had 32 chances to score birdie two on three-shot holes. He made good on ten of them or almost one in every three.

He had deuces on No. 5 three times, on No. 9 three times and on No. 14 three times. He birdied No. 11 just once.

Lawson Little and Goodman had a bit of it themselves. Twice they halved No. 9 in twos.

Emery, though, has made many of his birdies by spectacular recoveries. One of them today, for instance, was a birdie three when his drive was in the trap. He hooked out around a tree to get on and ran down a 12-foot putt for a birdie three.

Trouble doesn't seem to worry him. But in this game, and in this final, one can't afford to get into much trouble. Little isn't.

THE HAIG COMMENTS.

Walter Hagen was around today, impeccable as ever, debonair and blythe.

The Haig watched Little reel off three birdies in a row and win but one hole thereby.

"Well," he said, "I am going to keep on watching this match until it takes a lousy hole to win a hole."

As Little continued his dizzy pace to oust Goodman in the greatest amateur match since Bobby Jones was playing, The Haig commented once more.

"Well," he said, "I'm glad they don't permit professionals to play in the amateur tournament, it would have been embarrassing for me out there."

But failure to win in the opens has been one of Little's greatest disappointments. He stands on the threshold of winning his fourth amateur title in succession. Yet he hasn't been able to break through, or even come close, in the British or National opens. Nor the Masters' at Augusta. But there is lots of time left. He may yet.

MR. YATES THE JOCKEY.

Charlie Yates finished the round today completely exhausted. He is, so to speak, riding high, who is Walter Emery, the wild westerner.

The match today wasn't tough. After a ragged

BULLDOGS LOSE PLENTY WEIGHT IN STIFF DRILL

Mehre Sends Charges Through Rough Workout on Friday, 13th.

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 13.—Friday, the 13th, notwithstanding, Coach Harry Mehre today administered one of the stiffest workouts the Georgia Bulldogs gridders have undergone this season.

No casualties were reported after the workout, which was held under a boiling sun. The drill was an anti-climax to a probable scrimmage Saturday afternoon, the first of the season. Coach Mehre has not definitely decided on the first scrimmage Saturday, however.

"It all depends on how they show up in the morning drill and the opening of the afternoon workout," he said. Rain has interfered with the practice every day during the past week and made Saturday's drill rather indefinite.

Backs were showing up fine as to speed and some of the guards and ends were looking pleased at hitting the tackling dummy. Part of the signal drill was held in the shade of Sanford baseball field. Difficulties in hitting the dummy were the main thing during the drill.

The intensity of the heat here heavily on the boys, linemen in particular. Thirty-three of the players on the squad shed approximately 175 pounds.

No losses of more than 10 pounds were reported, although several dropped almost that many. Ray Gatchell was one of the smallest dispensers of weight. He lost one pound.

LOSE WEIGHT.

Henry Waggoner, end, 10; Billy Green, tackle, 10; Foster Milt, tackle, 9; Allan Shi, tackle, 9; Glenn Johnson, S; Harry Harman, tackle, 10, were the chief losers in the line who lost.

Backfield men dropping the most weight were Andy Roddenberry, quarterback, 7 pounds; Bill Hartman, fullback, 8; Alf Anderson, halfback, 5; Glenn Johnson, halfback, 5; Johnny Jones, halfback, 5; Jeff Hollis, fullback, 5 1/2; and Lynn Brannen, quarterback, 5.

Tackle play was the phase of play discussed by Coach Mehre at the noon lecture. He stressed the importance of good tackles in a pep talk. The ends will be available for the next position touched by the Bulldog mentor. For the past few days he has taken up the centers, guards and tackles.

Young Britons Watch Bulldogs.

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 13.—Four young Englishmen on a golf tour of Georgia sponsored by Rotary International, viewed Georgia Bulldog football practice and a scrimmage by the Athens High Maroons here this afternoon.

They were escorted by Tom Green, president of the Athens Rotary Club; Morton Hudson, prominent Athenian, and Colonel Mansel of the Georgia Athletic Director H. J. Stegeman also attended the Georgia workout with the group.

Touring the state in the group were Tom Green, Skipton in York-shire; Denis Davis, Wexley in Middlesex; Richard Miles, Kendal in Westland; John Evans, Walsall in Staffordshire. They will visit Atlanta Sunday.

Long Island Named For 1936 Amateur

CLEVELAND, Sept. 13.—(P)—The 1936 national amateur championship will be played over the historic course of the Garden City (Long Island) Golf Club, the United States Golf Association announced today.

At the same time the U. S. G. A. disclosed it had been decided to conduct the 1937 tournament on the Pacific coast. The location and dates will be decided later.

Three previous title tournaments have been held at Garden City, in 1900, 1908 and 1913.

Frank Parker Beats Ernie Sutter, 6-2, 6-0

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Sept. 13.—(P)—Frankie Parker, youthful Milwaukee tennis star, advanced to the semi-final round of the Pennsylvania state clay court championships today by defeating Ernest Sutter, of New Orleans, 6-2, 6-0.

Parker, paired with Martin Buxby, Miami, Fla., scored another victory in the quarter-final doubles by eliminating Paul Wehr and Jack Garland, 7-5, 6-2.

Wives of Elks Will Pass Hat

While members of the Atlanta Elks are paying tribute to Manager Eddie Moore, of the Crackers, Sunday, the "lady Elks" will be passing the hat in the grandstand for contributions to an appreciation fund for all of the Crackers.

In view of the fact that many fans have expressed a wish to do something for the players, who receive only their salaries for around two weeks of play in the Shaugnessy play-off, the idea of the ladies passing the hat was suggested by Dr. Raymond Tharp, member of the Elks committee.

Several fans had suggested placing a barrel in the foyer of the ball park for voluntary contributions to the players fund. This idea also may be carried out.

"Salaries are reduced in the Southern league this year. Our boys have played hard and a little extra present from the fans would be a fine gesture of appreciation," one prominent Atlanta fan wrote in a letter to The Constitution.

HAMBY SELECTED ON DEWAR TEAM

CAMP PERRY, Ohio, Sept. 13.—(P)—W. F. Riedel, governor of the Manhattan Revolver and Pistol Club of New York, tied an American record and broke a world record in the National Rifle Association matches today.

The first was in the 22-caliber international re-entry 50-meter range match, which he fired five yards longer than the American record. He shot a possible score of 100, with a string of 10 consecutive bulls-eyes, a value of one each on the standard American target. Officials said the score was equal to the 94 international count and tied the American record.

He broke the international record over the same range when he fired 97 out of a possible 100, the former record was 96.

The Colorado team won the American Legion inter-departmental match with a total score of 538 out of a possible 600.

E. A. Craven, of Selma, Cal., was winner of the United States trophy match on the small bore range with a possible score of 400, outranking several other possible scores by having the greater number of center shots on the target in the 100-yard shoot.

W. T. Bryn, of Roanoke, Pa., was second, with a score of 392. David McDougall, of the United States marines, Quantico, Va., third, all had 400 scores and were judged on the bull's-eyes.

J. D. McNabb, of Fort Bragg, N. C., was first in the Hercules trophy 200-yard two-man team small bore match with a score of 394 out of 400. Each member of the team scored 197.

Second place went to J. W. Hesston and Ellis M. Hellwig, both of New York. They had a total of 392, and third went to Paul Schiller and John Lewis, both of Nashville, Tenn., with a score of 392.

The members of the Dewar international small bore team, announced tonight, included Paul Schiller, Nashville, Tenn., and Charles Hamby, Atlanta, Ga.

The team will fire Sunday in competition with foreign teams which have fired or their home ranges.

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., Sept. 13.—On the Bloomsburg football squad is a player No. 24 broke an ankle; last year player No. 24 fractured a vertebra of the neck.

Out-of-Town Elks Plan To Join in Festivities

Not only the Atlanta Elks, but those from surrounding cities are going to participate in the "Eddie Moore" day festivities at Ponce de Leon park Sunday.

It was learned yesterday that Elks clubs of surrounding cities would join in paying a deserved tribute to a fellow Elks who has done such a good job in steering the Crackers into first place.

Athens, Lawrenceville, Columbus, in Georgia, and Chattanooga, Tenn., are going to have representative Elks here for the occasion.

Banners will be placed in front of their special boxes at the ball park, making the occasion a colorful one.

Following are telegrams received by The Constitution from Lawrenceville

CRACKERS BEAT LOOKOUTS, 8-6; DURHAM VICTOR

Atlanta Bats Shell Opposing Hurlers; Teams Play Today at 3:30.

By Jimmy Jones.

Several days ago Eddie Moore asked Bobby Durham, the sawed-off sharpshooter of his staff, if he minded pitching on Friday, the 13th.

"That's the same as any other day with me," replied the confident Bobby.

So last night, Moore began "tuning up" his staff for the Shaugnessy play-off by starting Durham, who has to work the National game Wednesday, against the Lookouts.

OUT ON TOP.

At times the little guy seemed headed for trouble, but he weathered all the jams and came out on top as the Crackers took the second game of the series from Clyde Milan's team, 8 to 6.

It was Bobby's 16th win of the season against eight losses and the last game he will start in the regular season, which ends Sunday with the double-header.

His opponent was the veteran left-hander, Jess Petty, and the Crackers handed the ex-National leaguer a terrific lacing, driving him to the sixth after compiling 15 hits, including a home run by Lipscomb, off his delivery in exactly five and one-third innings.

The crowd, which was a very good one, considering that first place is cinched, was in gay humor and enjoyed the game thoroughly as the last night game of the regular season was played under a full harvest moon.

"Bud" Thomas, who follows Durham in the order Moore will use them in the play-off, will work today in the game starting at 3:30, with "Snipe" Hansen due to go for the lookouts.

LOOKOUTS SCORE FIRST.

The Lookouts nipped Durham for a score in the first, Jimmy Mihalic, left fielder, slapping out a triple and ambled home on Mihalic's left to Harris in left.

Petty displayed feisty pitching in the second when he retired Chatham and Palmisano on strikes, getting his teaser of a curve ball across neatly for the third one.

The Crackers big inning was the third. They landed on Jess Petty for five runs on four hits. "Nig" Hootson, first baseman, sacrificed; Mancuso, double play, Martin (unassisted); left on bases, St. Louis 3; New York 13; bases on balls, off Chatham 2; Ballaban 2; Walker 2; Houser 1; Stout 1; Gumbert 1; strike outs by Smith 4; Hallahan 1; Walker 1; Dean 1; Gable 1; hits, off Chatham 1 in 1 1/3 innings, Smith 4 in 2 2/3, Walker 4 in 2 1/3, Houser 4 in 2 1/3, Gable 0 in 1 1/3, Houser 4 in 2 1/3, Dean 3 in 1; wild pitch, Smith, winning pitcher, Gable, losing pitcher, J. Dean, umpires, Sears, Higler, Bare and Stark. Time of game, 3:04.

The announced schedules were arranged to provide for the probability of either Memphis or Nashville finishing in fourth place. The first and fourth teams open the series with the second and third teams competing. The winners meet for the championship.

In event the teams finish in this order, Atlanta, New Orleans, Memphis and Nashville, the schedule is as follows:

It's All Set---Play-Off Starts Here Wednesday

Crackers Slated To Play Vols in First Round; System Is Explained Here.

By Jimmy Jones.

Well, the mystery of the Shaugnessy play-off, when and where it is going to start, etc., has finally been solved.

The bizarre system, by means of which a team which wins the pennant has to go out and defend it against the other teams of lower rank before it can have it, is going to start here in Atlanta next Wednesday night with the Crackers engaging the Nashville Vols (providing they remain in fourth place) at 8:30 o'clock, under the floodlights.

The second game will be played Thursday afternoon and the third game is set for Friday night there. Saturday will be an off day.

MUCH RIVALRY.

It seems there is considerable rivalry between Memphis and Nashville for the right to finish fourth and cut in on the Atlanta crowds. There also has been considerable confusion over—

1. Whether the play-off would start on Tuesday or Wednesday.
2. Whether games would be played at night or in the daylight.
3. Where the first game would be played.

All of these perplexing details are ironed out in the above announcement.

President Earl Mann, who straightened the matter out with Fay Murray, the Nashville owner, yesterday, announced that tickets for the play-off games would be placed on sale downtown at Marshall & Reynolds Monday morning.

It is high time that the Shaugnessy play-off is getting under way here, for the Texas and International leagues are well along with theirs. Atlanta fans, of course, are pulling for Bert Niehoff's Oklahoma City Indians to win in the Texas.

There will be no hike in the admission prices. The regular season rates will prevail.

Martin Announces Play-Off Schedule.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 13.—(P)—Federal Judge John D. Martin, president of the Southern Association, announced tonight the official schedules for the Shaugnessy play-off beginning next Wednesday to determine the league championship.

Judge Martin approved the schedule after long-distance telephone conversations today with representatives of the clubs in Atlanta, Memphis, New Orleans, and Nashville, the four teams who will meet in the series.

"I believe there will be keen interest in the play-off," Judge Martin said. "The teams are well matched and there will be some good contests."

The announced schedules were arranged to provide for the probability of either Memphis or Nashville finishing in fourth place. The first and fourth teams open the series with the second and third teams competing. The winners meet for the championship.

Cubs in Virtual Tie With Cards for First Place.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 13.—(P)—The Giants outlasted the Cardinals today to win, 13 to 10, in a ten-inning battle of hits and errors.
